Gruszczynski,Wouter Werner,2014-10-09 International courts and tribunals are often asked to review decisions originally made by domestic decision makers This can often be a source of tension as the international courts and tribunals need to judge how far to defer to the original decisions of the national bodies As international courts and tribunals have proliferated different courts have applied differing levels of deference to those original decisions which can lead to a fragmentation in international law International courts in such positions rely on two key doctrines the standard of review and the margin of appreciation The standard of review establishes the extent to which national decisions relating to factual legal or political issues arising in the case are re examined in the international court The margin of appreciation is the extent to which national legislative executive and judicial decision makers are allowed to reflect diversity in their interpretation of human rights obligations The book begins by providing an overview of the margin of appreciation and standard of review recognising that while the margin of appreciation explicitly acknowledges the existence of such deference the standard of review does not it is rather a procedural mechanism It looks in depth at how the public policy exception has been assessed by the European Court of Justice and the WTO dispute settlement bodies It examines how the European Court of Human Rights has taken an evidence based approach towards the margin of appreciation as well as how it has addressed issues of hate speech The Inter American system is also investigated and it is established how far deference is possible within that legal organisation Finally the book studies how a range of other international courts such as the International Criminal Court and the Law of the Sea Tribunal have approached these two core doctrines
