Illustrated by Miss L.B. Humphrey* Adeline Trafton, Miss L. B. Humphrey,1872 The Spatial Dynamics of Juvenile Series Literature Michael G. Cornelius,2020-11-11 Where we come from where we are where we have been and where we are going all have a huge impact on who we are Theories of space and place also hold that the converse is equally true that we have an impact on those spaces and places we inhabit or dwell within We make space our agencies our cultures our beliefs and values and understandings shape the macro and micro environments around us Just as much however those places we inhabit shape us causing us to adapt ourselves to them Children exist in spaces that are crafted for them by adults by parents by school administrators and teachers and as such their impact on space can be somewhat limited Space is made for them but certainly not to their own specifications or liking In children s literature spaces are often seen as noteworthy markers of a child s progression toward adulthood whether the space is Laura Ingalls little house or Harry Potter s Hogwarts For these characters movement through space is about growth and change about accepting the inevitability of growing up and the responsibility of the adulthood whether that be marriage and motherhood or vanquishing the most evil wizard of all time However what about juvenile series books whose central protagonists generally never grow or change The central character of these series usually a flat unchanging trope more than a fully realized fleshed out dynamic figure is a static creation Though characters like Nancy Drew and the Hardy Boys frequently move through different geographies they never change as characters In fact one could argue that the only dynamic that ever experiences any alteration in a series like Nancy Drew is setting Surely there is something significant about the relationship of series books to those spaces their protagonists inhabit This collection explores that relationship the dynamics between the controlled spaces of childhood and the variable spaces of juvenile series literature It shows that the unchanging series book characters demonstrate that their impact on space is far greater than its impact ever is on them reflecting an exercise in spatial authority that most children and even children s book heroes never quite experience

Writing for Immortality Anne E. Boyd, 2010-01-01 Before the Civil War American writers such as Catharine Maria Sedgwick and Harriet Beecher Stowe had established authorship as a respectable profession for women But though they had written some of the most popular and influential novels of the century they accepted the taboo against female writers regarding themselves as educators and businesswomen During and after the Civil War some women writers began to challenge this view seeing themselves as artists writing for themselves and for posterity Writing for Immortality studies the lives and works of four prominent members of the first generation of American women who strived for recognition as serious literary artists Louisa May Alcott Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Elizabeth Stoddard and Constance Fenimore Woolson Combining literary criticism and cultural history Anne E Boyd examines how these authors negotiated the masculine connotation of artist imagining a space for themselves in the literary pantheon Redrawing the boundaries between male and female literary spheres and between American and British literary traditions Boyd shows how these writers rejected the didacticism of the previous generation of women writers and instead drew their inspiration from the most prominent literary writers of their day Emerson James Barrett Browning and Eliot Placing the works and experiences of Alcott Phelps Stoddard and Woolson within contemporary discussions about genius and the American artist Boyd reaches a sobering conclusion Although these women were encouraged by the democratic ideals implicit in such concepts they were equally discouraged by lingering prejudices about their applicability to women

Reading Transatlantic Girlhood in the Long Nineteenth Century Robin L. Cadwallader, LuElla D'Amico, 2020-05-13 This collection is the first of its kind to interrogate both literal and metaphorical transatlantic exchanges of culture and ideas in nineteenth century girls fiction As such it initiates conversations about how the motif of travel in literature taught nineteenth century girl audiences to reexamine their own cultural biases by offering a fresh perspective on literature that is often studied primarily within a national context Women and children in nineteenth century America are often described as being tied to the home and the domestic sphere but this collection challenges this categorization and shows that girls in particular were often expected to go abroad and to learn new cultural frames in order to enter the realm of adulthood those who could not afford to go abroad literally could do so through the stories that traveled to them from other lands or the stories they read of others travels Via transatlantic exchange then authors readers and the characters in the texts covered in this collection confront the idea of what constitutes the self Books examined in this volume include Adeline Trafton's An American Girl Abroad 1872 Johanna Spyri's Heidi 1881 and Elizabeth W Champney's eleven book Vassar Girl Series 1883-92 among others
