19rockefeller Foundation Report Nursing:

Russian and Soviet Health Care from an International Perspective Susan Grant, 2017-02-20 This collection compares Russian and Soviet medical workers physicians psychiatrists and nurses and examines them within an international framework that challenges traditional Western conceptions of professionalism and professionalization through exploring how these ideas developed amongst medical workers in Russia and the Soviet Union Ideology and everyday life are examined through analyses of medical practice while gender is assessed through the experience of women medical professionals and patients Cross national and entangled history is explored through the prism of health care with medical professionals crossing borders for a number of reasons to promote the principles and advancements of science and medicine internationally to serve altruistic purposes and support international health care initiatives and to escape persecution Chapters in this volume highlight the diversity of experiences of health care but also draw attention to the shared concerns and issues that make science and medicine the subject of international discussion Public Affairs Information Service Bulletin ,1919 Bulletin of the Public Affairs Information Service Public Affairs Information Service,1920 From Asylum to Community Gerald N. Grob,2014-07-14 The distinguished historian of medicine Gerald Grob analyzes the post World War II policy shift that moved many severely mentally ill patients from large state hospitals to nursing homes families and subsidized hotel rooms and also most disastrously to the streets On the eve of the war public mental hospitals were the chief element in the American mental health system Responsible for providing both treatment and care and supported by major portions of state budgets they employed more than two thirds of the members of the American Psychiatric Association and cared for nearly 98 percent of all institutionalized patients This study shows how the consensus for such a program vanished creating social problems that tragically intensified the sometimes unavoidable devastation of mental illness Examining changes in mental health care between 1940 and 1970 Grob shows that community psychiatric and psychological services grew rapidly while new treatments enabled many patients to lead normal lives Acute services for the severely ill were expanded and public hospitals relieved of caring for large numbers of chronic or aged patients developed into more active treatment centers But since the main goal of the new policies was to serve a broad population many of the most seriously ill were set adrift without even the basic necessities of life By revealing the sources of the euphemistically designated policy of community care Grob points to sorely needed alternatives Originally published in 1991 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

America and the Making of Modern Turkey Ali Erken,2018-03-30 After the fall of the Ottoman Empire Mustafa Kemal

Ataturk's government encouraged substantial American investment in education and aid. It was argued that Turkey needed the technical skills and wealth offered by American education and so a series of American schools was set up across the country to educate the Turkish youth. Here Ali Erken in the first study of its kind argues that these organizations had a huge impact on political and economic thought in Turkey acting as a form of soft power for US national interests throughout the 20th Century. Robert College originally a missionary school founded by US benefactors has been responsible for educating two Turkish Prime Ministers, writers such as Orhan Pamuk and a huge number of influential economists, politicians and journalists. The end result of these American philanthropic efforts, Erken argues, was a consensus in the 1970s that the country must westernize. This mindset and the opposition viewpoint it engendered has come to define political struggle in modern Turkey torn between a capitalist modern West and an Islamic Ottoman East. The book also reveals how and why the Rockefeller and Ford foundations funneled large amounts of money into Turkey post 1945 and undertook activities in support of Western candidates in Turkey as a bulwark against the Soviet Union. This is an essential contribution to the history of US Turkish relations and the influence of the West in Turkish political thought. California State Journal of Medicine, 1922
