group of healthy individuals, along with a permissible range of variation, i.e. between the third and ninety-seventh percentiles. Most healthy children maintain their growth percentile on the growth charts as the years pass by. Significant deviation in a child's plotted position on the growth chart can be due to a recent illness or over- or undernutrition. It is also important to take into account the gestation age of infants born prematurely. The duration of prematurity is subtracted from the infant's chronological age. This correction, however, is not required after 2 yr of age.

Weight. The average birthweight of neonates is about 3 kg. During the first few days after birth, the newborn loses extracellular fluid equivalent to about 10% of the body weight. Most infants regain their birthweight by the age of 10 days. Subsequently, they gain weight at a rate of approximately 25–30 g per day for the first 3 months of life. Thereafter, they gain about 400 g weight every month for the remaining part of the first year. An infant usually doubles his birthweight by the age of 5 months. The birthweight triples at 1 yr and is four times at 2 yr of age. Thus, the weight at 5 months, 1 yr and 2 yr is approximately 6, 9 and 12 kg, respectively. The weight of a child at the age of 3 yr is approximately five times that of the birthweight. At 5 yr, the expected weight can be calculated by multiplying the birthweight by 6, at 7 yr by 7 and at 10 yr by 10. It follows that the expected weight at 3, 5, 7 and 10 yr is approximately 15, 18, 21 and 30 kg, respectively. On an average, a child gains about 2 kg every year between the ages of 3 and 7 yr, and 3 kg per year after that till the pubertal growth spurt begins (Table 2.3).

Length or height. The infant measures approximately 50 cm at birth, 60 cm at 3 months, 65 cm at 6 months 70 cm at 9 months, 75 cm at 1 yr and 90 cm at 2 yr. A normal Indian child is 100 cm tall at the age of 4 yr. Thereafter, the child

Age	Weight (kg)	Length or height (cm)	Head circumference (cm)
Birth	3	50	34
6 months	6 (doubles)	65	43
1 yr	9 (triples)	75	46
2 yr	12 (quadruples)	90	48
3 yr	15	95	49

gains about 6 cm in height every year, until the age of 12 yr. After this, increments in height vary according to the age at the onset of puberty. There is a marked acceleration of the growth during puberty.

Head circumference (HC). Head growth is rapid, especially in the first half of infancy. It reflects the brain growth during this period. The head growth slows considerably thereafter. Beginning at 34 cm at birth, the head circumference increases approximately 2 cm per month for first 3 month, 1 cm per month between 3–6 month and 0.5 cm per month for the rest of the first year of life. The head circumference is approximately 40 cm at 3 month, 43 cm at 6 month 46–47 cm at 1 yr, 48 cm at 2 yr. By 12 yr it is 52 cm.

Chest circumference. The circumference of chest is about 3 cm less than the head circumference at birth. The circumference of head and chest are almost equal by the age of 1 yr. Thereafter, the chest circumference exceeds the head circumference.

Body mass index (BMI). The formula to calculate BMI is weight (kg)/height (meter)<sup>2</sup>. BMI is primarily used to assess obesity. BMI at or above the 95th centile for age or more than 30 kg/m<sup>2</sup> is obesity.

Growth Charts

If the growth measurements are recorded in a child over a period of time and are plotted on a graph, the deviation in the growth profile of the child from the normal pattern of growth for that age can be easily interpreted. This is a satisfactory tool to diagnose deviation of growth from normal. Allowed normal range of variation in observations is conventionally taken as values between 3rd and 97th percentile curves. Percentile curves represent frequency distribution curves. For example, 25th percentile for height in a population would mean that height of 75% of individuals is above and 24% are below this value. One standard deviation (SD) above the mean coincides with 84th percentile curve. Likewise 16th percentile curve represents one SD below the mean. Values between third and 97th percentile curve correspond to mean  $\pm$  2 SD.

Z scores: In a population with observations in a typical Gaussian (normal) distribution, any individual value can be expressed as how many SDs it lies above or below the
