

6th Grade – Literary Essay

Preface

The following unit supports and aligns to the Common Core State Standards. This research-based work is the outcome of a collective effort made by numerous secondary teachers from around the state of Michigan. MAISA (Michigan Association of Intermediate School Administrators) initiated a statewide collaborative project bringing together educators from around the state to create and refine a K-12 English Language Arts model curriculum. This one unit is situated within a yearlong sequence of units. Depending upon the unit's placement in the yearlong Scope and Sequence, it will be important to recognize prior skills and content this unit expects learners to have. This unit also has a companion reading unit where readers closely study narrative text (reading unit available spring of 2013). Each unit presents a string of teaching points that scaffold and spiral the content and skills. The unit is structured to be student-centered rather than teacher-driven. Sessions emphasize student engagement and strive to increase critical thinking and writing skills simultaneously. Writing and thinking processes are stressed and are equally important to the end writing product. Sessions are designed as a series of mini-lessons that allow time to write, practice, and conference. Through summative and formative assessments specific to each unit, students will progress toward becoming independent thinkers and writers.

Significant input and feedback was gathered both in the initial conceptualizing of the unit and later revisions. Teachers from around the state piloted and/or reviewed the unit and their feedback and student artifacts helped in the revision process. Special thanks go to lead unit writers Kristine Butcher and Monica Phillips who closely studied the CCSS, translated the standards into curriculum and practice, and revised with a close eye to classroom teacher feedback. Throughout the yearlong collaborative project, teachers reviewing units are finding how students' habits of mind have shifted from task oriented to big picture thinking utilizing a critical literacy lens.
