Hip-Hip-Hooray for Households!

Households are made up of people. Many of these people are the human resources that provide labor to produce goods and provide services. Sometimes people provide labor to businesses, and sometimes people provide labor to government. In return for their labor, people are paid wages, or money. Exchanging their talents, time, and labor for money is how households earn income.

What do households do with this money? They purchase goods (such as food, cars, clothes, and TVs) and services (such as those provided by doctors, lawyers, electricians, and plumbers).

People in households act as producers when they provide labor to produce goods and services.
People in households act as consumers when they consume (buy) goods and services.
In this way, households help drive the economy!

Fascinating
Fact

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, in 2018 there were about 128 million households in the United States!
