

GATHER, EVALUATE, AND DOCUMENT SOURCES

Part of the research process is to be able to gather information from a range of relevant print and electronic sources. We will use the school library information system to locate reference materials (i.e. an encyclopedia) about your subject. You may use all types of resources, however your final project REQUIRES that you have at least the following sources: one encyclopedia source or other reference book; two non-fiction book, magazine, newspaper article, or other type of database source; two Internet sources. While five sources are required, more sources may be used as needed.

When you find an information source you wish to use, you must create a bibliographic citation for it. Each citation should be recorded on the "BIBLIOGRAPHIC CITATION INFORMATION" sheet located at the back of this packet. Remember that bibliographic information for citations should include the author, the title, page numbers, publishers, etc. If a piece of information is not present in a source, simply leave that box blank and move on to the next box in your bibliographic citation information.

For print sources, you should be able to identify the following citation information:

Author's name, title of the chapter or essay being used, the title of the text, the name of the editor (this may or may not be present), the edition and/or volume of the text, the place of publication, the name of the publisher, the date of publication (copyright date), and the medium of publication would be print. (Databases are print sources.)

For internet sources, you should be able to identify the following citation information:

Author/creator's name, title of the webpage, the title of the website (which may be the same as the title of the webpage), the date of publication (or last update), the date you accessed the site (when you actually used the site), the name of the sponsoring institution or organization, the simple URL (www.whatever.com/org/edu/gov/mil). If you are using an image from the site (map, graph, chart, photograph), be sure to include the title of the image (can be a brief description of the image if a specific title isn't shown). The medium of the publication would be web.

Evaluating sources:

While most print sources are from reliable, credible sources, when you begin internet research it is important to check the reliability and validity of your sources. We will use the "Get R.E.A.L." check to validate your internet sources:

Read the URL: identify the URL extension:

gov = government

mil = military

edu = education

com = business

org = any organization

net = any organization

Examine the content: is the information useful and accurate? Are additional links provided? Is the site current and updated?

Ask about the author or owner: is the owner a person, company, or organization? Is the owner an authority on the subject matter of the site?

Look at the links: are the links to other websites credible?
