CORONARY ARTERIES

Right Coronary Artery

- The right coronary artery (RCA) originates from the right side of the aorta. It travels along the groove between the right atrium and right ventricle (Figures 3-13).
- 90% of RCA causes an inferior wall myocardial infarction (MI) and/or disturbances in AV nodal conduction.

- The left coronary artery (LCA) originates from the left side of the aorta.
- The first part of the LCA is called the left main coronary artery. It is about the width of a pencil and divides into two major branches: the anterior descending artery and the circumflex artery.
- Blood to its two primary branches; the left anterior descending (LAD) (also called the anterior interventricular artery or AICA) and the circumflex artery (CircA). These vessels are slightly smaller than the left main coronary artery.
- Blockage of the septal branch of the LAD can result in a septal MI.
- Blockage of the diagonal branch of the LAD can result in an anterior wall MI.
- Blockage of the circumflex branch of the LCA can result in a conduction delay.
