Post-War Britain Piers Legh, 2023-01-26 The book tells the untold story of the Conservative Party's involvement in terms of stance and policy in the destruction of selective state education from 1945 up to the present day. Close consideration is paid to their attitudes and prejudices towards education both in power and in opposition. Legh examines the Party's responses to the pressure for comprehensive schooling and egalitarianism from the Labour Party and the British left. In doing so, Legh defies current historiography to demonstrate that the Party were not passive actors in the advancement of comprehensive schooling. The lively narrative is moved along by the author's critical examination of the Education Ministers throughout this period: Florence Horsbrugh and David Eccles serving under Churchill and Eden, and also Quintin Hogg and Geoffrey Lloyd under Macmillan, as well as Edward Boyle and Margaret Thatcher under Edward Heath. Legh's detailed research utilises a range of government documents, personal papers, parliamentary debates, and newspapers to provide this crucial re-assessment of the Conservative Party and selective education, and in doing so, questions over simplistic generalisations about wholesale support for selective education policy. It reveals instead questioning, compromises, and disagreements within the Party and its political and ideological allies. The result is a stimulating revival of existing scholarship which will be of interest to scholars of British education and politics.

Local Citizenship in the Global Arena Sally Findlow, 2016-11-03 Local Citizenship in the Global Arena proposes a reconsideration of both citizenship and citizenship education, moving away equally from prevailing global citizenship and fundamental British values approaches towards a curriculum for education that is essentially about creating cosmopolitan, included and inclusive, politically engaged citizens of communities, local, national and global. Viewing education as both problem and solution, Findlow argues that today's climate of rapid and unpredictable geopolitical and cultural re-scoping requires an approach to citizenship education that both reflects and shapes society, paying attention to relationships between the local and global aspects of political voice, equality and community. Drawing on a range of international examples, she explores the importance and possibilities of a form of education that instead of promoting divisive competition, educates about citizenship in its various forms and encourages the sorts of open and radical thinking that can help young people cross ideological and physical borders and use their voice in line with their own and others' real long-term interests. Successive chapters develop this argument by critically examining the key elements of citizenship discourses through the interrelated lenses of geopolitical change, nationalism, the competition fetish, critical pedagogy, multiculturalism, protest politics, feminism, and ecology, and highlighting ways in which the situationally diverse lived realities of citizenship have been mediated by different forms of education. The book draws attention to how we think of education's place in a world of combined globalisation, localism, anti-state revolt, and xenophobia. It will be of key interest to academics, researchers, and postgraduate students in the fields of education, political science, philosophy, sociology, social policy, cultural studies, and anthropology.
