

IX Simple Support Tool

The IX Simple Support Tool is abbreviated programming software designed to quickly configure small IX Series systems (20 stations or less). It allows the configuration of each station's number, name, and IP address while leaving all other settings at their default values.

For more detailed programming, please visit <https://www.alphone.com/home/products/ix-series#software> for the full version of the IX Series Support Tool.

Getting Started

The IX Simple Support Tool batch configures all stations simultaneously, finding each station on the network by its MAC address.

It is recommended that the stations and the programming PC are placed on the same unmanaged network for the initial programming process. Once completed, the stations may be removed from this environment and deployed where needed.

Windows Defender and other local firewalls may prevent the search process used by this software, so ensure they are temporarily disabled, or exceptions are made before continuing.

Logging In

When first launching the IX Simple Support Tool, enter admin for both the ID and Password and click Login. For first time installations, click Create New System.
