Detracking for Excellence and Equity Carol Corbett Burris, Corbett Burris, Delia T. Garrity, 2008-08-15 Ability grouping, Leveling systems, Streaming. This is the modern way of talking about tracking, the traditional practice of sorting and selecting students based on test scores and other criteria and then steering these groups into the most appropriate course of study. In 1987, New York's suburban Rockville Centre School District faced the fact that its longstanding tracking system was resulting in unequal educational opportunities and allowing racial and socioeconomic stratification of its student population. School leaders embarked on an ambitious program of reform, reexamining beliefs about intelligence, ability, and instruction and offering all students the opportunity to study a rigorous curriculum in heterogeneous classrooms. In this book, authors Carol Corbett Burris and Delia T. Garrity, veterans of the Rockville Centre School District, offer an experience-based and research-supported argument that detracking, implemented with planning, patience, and persistence, can do in every school district what it did in theirs: raise achievement across the board and dramatically narrow the achievement gap. Their main goal is a practical one: to provide educational leaders with proven strategies for launching, sustaining, and monitoring a successful detracking reform. Here you'll read: Why detracking is necessary, the benefits it brings, and how to build support among teachers and parents; How to revise curriculum to level up instruction; How to establish a multiyear, personalized professional development program to help teachers address new instructional needs; How to best support effective teaching and learning in a heterogeneous classroom. Detracking for Excellence and Equity outlines a comprehensive approach built on self-reflection, direct action, vigilant supervision, and a set of very clear beliefs that schools and opportunity matter, that acceleration and enrichment will improve all students' achievement, and that all students deserve access to the best curriculum.

Literacy, Narrative and Culture Jens Brockmeier,David R Olson,Min Wang,2013-12-16 An important contribution to the multi disciplinary study of literacy narrative and culture this work argues that literacy is perhaps best described as an ensemble of socially and historically embedded activities of cultural practices It suggests viewing written language producing and distributing deciphering and interpreting signs are closely related to other cultural practices such as narrative and painting The papers of the first and second parts illustrate this view in contexts that range from the pre historical beginnings of tracking signs in hunter gatherer cultures and the emergence of modern literate traditions in Europe in the 17th to 19th century to the future of electronically mediated writing in times of the post Gutenberg galaxy The chapters of the third present results of recent research in developmental and educational psychology Contributions by leading experts in the field make the point that there is no theory and history of writing that does not presuppose a theory of culture and social development At the same time it demonstrates that every theory and history of culture must unavoidably entail a theory and history of writing and written culture This book brings together perspectives on literacy from psychology linguistics history and sociology of literature philosophy anthropology and history of art It addresses these issues in plain language not coded in specialized jargon and addresses a multi disciplinary forum of scholars and students of literacy narrative and culture
