Division of Laboratories and Criteria Development, 1975

Industrial hearing conservation programs are assessed in terms of the extent of existence standard practices problems encountered and apparent measures of effectiveness A survey questionnaire was used and site visits were made in order to elicit responses from individual companies in four major industrial categories manufacturing construction transportation and mining The results indicate that many industries are responding to the need for establishment of hearing conservation programs Of those companies claiming to have noise problems the majority have noise reduction programs and a large percentage are planning such programs Engineering noise control seems to pose the greatest problem for industry and most companies deal with controlling noise exposure through the use of ear protectors Tolerances on audiometers and on background noise levels in test rooms as established by the American National Standards Institute were frequently exceeded at one or more frequencies indicating a need for more precise calibration check procedures     Handbook of Noise Measurement Arnold P. Students' manual. pt. 2. Instructor's manual Edward Bradford Titchener, 1905

The general purpose with which this book has been written is sufficiently indicated by its title I have selected a number of the classical experiments of Experimental Psychology and have tried to present them in such a way that their performance shall have a real disciplinary value for the undergraduate student Within this general purpose my aim has been two fold I have sought to show in the first place that psychology is above the laboratory that we employ our instruments of precision not for their own sake but solely because they help us to a refined and more accurate introspection And secondly just as in my Outline of Psychology and Primer of Psychology I gave the results of experimentation a prominent place in the psychological system so here I have treated the selected experiments not as separate exercises but as points of departure for systematic discussion PsycINFO Database Record c 2005 APA all rights reserved
