		Rebranding can be used as a tool or catalyst to improve quality of places (economic, social and environmental) and there are a range of linked ideas here: inward investment attracting other businesses etc and positive spirals. One of the issues with rebranding is to what extent schemes actually benefit all rural communities, especially those that are the most deprived or hidden. Simple idea is that high levels of deprivation (or inequality) may mean that places are in need of rebranding, i.e., they become special priorities. Therefore there should be a strong linkage. Rural areas discussed could be wide variety of locations – obviously inaccessibility (including coastal) will feature highly. High levels of deprivation + poverty may not equate with basis of rebranding. Process more likely to be driven by commercial opportunity / entrepreneurship – places that are highly accessible + close to large catchments may be highly prized.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
Level 1	1-4	Basic and generalised with few ideas on deprivation / rebranding. Lacks structure and very limited use of geographical terminology. Limited or no reference to a real place. Considerable errors in language.
Level 2	5-7	Some structure. Likely to be lacking in either range or depth, but shows / implies some understanding of deprivation and need for rebranding. There are some written language errors.
Level 3	8-10	A clear response which examines possible link between deprivation and rebranding. Considers 'need'. Likely to exemplify. Well structured and balanced response. Written language errors are rare.

Contributors include both scholars and practitioners who provide first hand description and analysis of fundamental issues in Asia. Peace and political stability are of ultimate importance with Asia at the forefront of wealth creation in the global economy. Volume 1 unpacks and examines the foreign policy strategies of key states and the role of regional institutions in responding to the security demands of an Asian century. Volume 2 studies the strong economic integration through trade and cross border investment that has been essential to Asia. The region's future prosperity depends on it being able to remain open and outward looking. As Asia grows larger and richer more concerted efforts are required to surmount regional rivalry and to further strengthen the regional architecture of economic cooperation. Volume 3 looks at the emerging economies thirst for energy that creates huge competition around which domestic regional and international political economy unfolds. Climate change and aspiration for sustainable development further complicate the challenge. Volume 4 offers a comprehensive coverage of subjects on environment and sustainable development in Asia with case studies of selected and representative countries that are at different stages of economic development and facing different environment related problems and challenges in the twenty first century. This interdisciplinary set is a fine example of international cooperation with contributors hailing from different parts of Asia as well as North America and Europe. It is a must have for anyone keen on understanding Asia's dynamic and changing scene.
