A Rigorous Semantics for BPMN 2.0 Process Diagrams Felix Kossak,Christa Illibauer,Verena Geist,Jan Kubovy,Christine Natschläger,Thomas Ziebermayr,Theodorich Kopetzky,Bernhard Freudenthaler,Klaus-Dieter Schewe,2015-02-04 This book provides the most complete formal specification of the semantics of the Business Process Model and Notation 2.0 standard BPMN available to date in a style that is easily understandable for a wide range of readers not only for experts in formal methods but e.g. also for developers of modeling tools software architects or graduate students specializing in business process management BPMN issued by the Object Management Group is a widely used standard for business process modeling However major drawbacks of BPMN include its limited support for organizational modeling its only implicit expression of modalities and its lack of integrated user interaction and data modeling Further in many cases the syntactical and in particular semantic definitions of BPMN are inaccurate incomplete or inconsistent The book addresses concrete issues concerning the execution semantics of business processes and provides a formal definition of BPMN process diagrams which can serve as a sound basis for further extensions i.e. in the form of horizontal refinements of the core language To this end the Abstract State Machine ASMs method is used to formalize the semantics of BPMN ASMs have demonstrated their value in various domains e.g. specifying the semantics of programming or modeling languages verifying the specification of the Java Virtual Machine or formalizing the ITIL change management process This kind of improvement promotes more consistency in the interpretation of comprehensive models as well as real exchangeability of models between different tools In the outlook at the end of the book the authors conclude with proposing extensions that address actor modeling including an intuitive way to denote permissions and obligations integration of user centric views a refined communication concept and data integration

Novel Materials in the Environment Great Britain. Royal Commission on Environmental Pollution, 2008 The Royal Commission's decision to study novel materials was motivated by concern about the potential for releases to the environment arising from increasing industrial applications of metals and minerals that have not previously been widely used and secondly by the embodiment of nanoparticles and nanotubes in a wide range of consumer products and specialist applications in fields such as medicine and environmental remediation Most of the evidence received focused on nanomaterials particles fibres and tubes on the scale of a few billionths of a metre Chapters 2 and 3 explore the extent to which novel substances are currently being deployed the plausible pathways by which they might enter the environment their likely environmental destinations in use or disposal and the possible consequences of their release to those destinations Chapter 4 considers what arrangements would be most appropriate for the governance of emerging technologies under two conditions that pose serious constraints on any regulator First is the condition of ignorance about the possible environmental impacts in the absence of any kind of track record for the technology Second is the condition of ubiquity the fact that new technologies no longer develop in a context of local experimentation but emerge as globally pervasive systems which challenges both trial and error learning and attempts at national regulation Both new governance approaches and modifications to existing ones are likely to be called for They will need to be rooted in ideas of adaptive management that require multiple perspectives on the issues The Commission's recommendations are based on the premise that it is the functionality of the material not particle size or mode of production which is critical for evaluating its potential impact on the environment or human health
