Who's Got a Backbone?

Vertebrates and invertebrates are the two groups of animals. Vertebrates are animals that have a backbone or spine. It supports and protects the animal. It also lets them move. Vertebrates are mammals like a dog, birds like a parrot, reptiles like a snake, amphibians like a frog, and fish like a goldfish. In contrast, invertebrates do not have a backbone. Most animals are invertebrates like insects, spiders, worms, and snails.

One difference between vertebrates and invertebrates is their bodies. Vertebrates have a complex and organized body. Most vertebrates have a few same parts. They have a head, body, and tail. On the other hand, invertebrates come in many shapes and sizes. Some have a hard outer shell, while others are soft and gelatinous.

Another difference is how they move. Vertebrates have strong muscles and bones that let them move in many ways. For example, birds can fly, fish can swim, and mammals can walk or run. Invertebrates, however, get around in simple ways. Some crawl, some swim, and some can jump.
