

3. OPERATION

3-1. CONTROLS AND FUNCTIONS

3-1-1. Front Panel

The primary functions of the ALINCO DR-570T/E are printed in white on the face of the transceiver. Many of the function keys offer two separate functions. In such cases, the secondary function is printed in amber. To access the secondary functions, first press the FUNCTION key, (the 'F' indicator will light on the display) then the desired function key. In this manual, the primary functions keys appear in all capital letters; the secondary function keys appear in all capital letters within parenthesis. Indicator lights, as they appear on the display are all capital with single quotes (').

The DR-570T/E controls and indicators are as follows:

1 Main Band Dial

The main band dial is rotated either clockwise or counterclockwise to select the transmit/receive frequencies, memory channels, frequency steps, sub-audible encode tone frequencies and frequency shifts (offsets).

2 MHz UP Key

Utilized only in the VFO mode, the MHz UP key increments the VFO frequency one MHz each time it is pressed. If the key is pressed and held, the frequency will increment one MHz in rapid succession.

3 MHz DOWN Key

Utilized only in the VFO mode, the MHz DOWN key operates essentially the same as the MHz UP key (No. 2, above), but the frequency decrements one MHz.

4 LCD Panel

The LCD panel shows functional information during transceiver operation. Refer to Section 3-1-2 for information on each indicator light.

5 MR (MW) Key

The MR key accesses the memory mode in which preselected frequencies, shifts, and sub-audible encode tones can be recalled (after being programmed). To programme the memory channels, see Section 3-2-2.

6 VFO (LOCK) Key

The VFO key accesses the VFO mode which permits the operator to select a frequency and type of operation desired. The (LOCK) key disables all the keys except for the PTT (Push-to-talk) and VFO keys. See 3-2-3 for operating instructions.

7 H/L Key

The H/L key toggles between high and low power. Push in for low power (5 Watts). High power is 45 Watts for VHF and 35 Watts for UHF.

8 SUB-band Dial

The SUB-band dial is rotated either clockwise or counterclockwise to select sub-band receive frequencies, memory channels, frequency steps, and sub-audible encode tone frequencies.

9 Power Switch/MAIN VOL (Main Volume) Knob

Turn knob clockwise to turn transceiver power on; fully counterclockwise to turn the power off. The MAIN VOL knob also controls the volume for main band operation. Turn clockwise to increase volume, counterclockwise to decrease volume.

10 MAIN SQL (Main Band Squelch) Knob

The MAIN SQL knob controls the squelch circuit for main band operation. Turn knob fully counterclockwise, then turn knob clockwise until white noise disappears. Main band squelch is now set.

11 SUB VOL (Sub-band Volume) Knob

The SUB VOL knob controls the volume on the sub-band. Turn clockwise to increase volume, counterclockwise to decrease volume.

12 SUB SQL (Sub-band Squelch) Knob

The SUB SQL knob controls the squelch circuit for sub-band operation. Turn knob fully counterclockwise, then turn knob clockwise until white noise disappears. The sub-band squelch is now set.

13 SCAN (SKIP) Key

The SCAN key controls the scan function, toggling scan on and off. The following four scan functions are available: Program Scan, Memory Scan, VFO Scan, Open Channel Scan. See Section 3-3-2 for operating instructions. The (SKIP) key selects which memory channels are to be skipped during the scanning operation. See 3-3-5 for operating instructions.
