Tissues

I. Histology: Science of tissues

Tissue: Group of similar cells that perform a specialized function.

II. Intercellular Junctions: The cells of some tissues adhere to other cells by intercellular junctions.

A. Tight junctions: form an impermeable barrier – molecules cannot pass between the cells.

1. Tight junctions line the digestive tract and form the blood-brain barrier.

B. Desmosomes: form "spot welds" that provide a durable structural unit.

1. Cells of the epidermis (outer layer of skin) are connected by desmosomes.

C. Gap junctions: are formed by protein channels.

1. The channels allow small molecules, such as ions, sugars, and amino acids to move between adjacent cells.
2. Cardiac muscle cells are connected by gap junctions, called intercalated discs.

III. List 4 major types of tissues in the human body

A. Epithelial tissue cover surfaces and lines cavities

B. Connective tissue (CT) binds, protects, transports, etc.

C. Muscle tissue specialized to contract/move

D. Nervous tissue conducts impulses

IV. Epithelial Tissue

A. Characteristics of Epithelial Tissues

1. Covers surfaces, and lines body cavities and hollow organs.
2. Tightly packed cells.
3. Basal surface is anchored to a layer of connective tissue, called the basement membrane.
4. Apical surface is exposed to an open space.

The Assassination of William McKinley Cary Federman, 2017-12-06 This book is an examination of the assassination of President William McKinley by Leon Czolgosz an American born purported anarchist This work offers a new and different way to approach historical crime stories Rather than accepting the idea that Czolgosz was inherently dangerous because of his ethnic background or his obscure political statements Federman argues rather that political relations historical events and the developing discourses in the natural and social sciences toward normal and pathological behaviors structured the meaning of the assassination Federman proposes there are six ways to view an assassin each corresponding to a social science Consequently each chapter of this manuscript examines a social science and its relation to the assassination Overall there are three purposes to this work One is to examine the rise of the social sciences at the time of the assassination The second is to explore the historical and political understanding of political violence and the third is to examine the meaning of legal responsibility
