convey the acute pain of utility shutoffs or the relentless toll of chronic energy hardships marked by difficult choices and harsh living conditions Drawing on survey data and interviews with one hundred energy insecure individuals and families Hernandez and Laird detail the experience of energy insecurity Individuals and families suffering from energy insecurity endure economic hardships such as difficulty paying utility bills utility debt and disconnection from utility services They also struggle with physical challenges such as poor housing conditions and poor or dysfunctional heating and cooling systems They are often forced to make difficult choices about what bills to pay These decisions are sometimes referred to as heat or eat choices as families cannot afford to pay for heating and food at the same time Energy insecure individuals and families employ a variety of strategies to keep energy costs down to avoid having to make these hard choices This includes deliberate underconsumption of energy enduring physical discomfort and using dangerous alternatives such as open flames ovens or space heaters to try to maintain a comfortable temperature in their home To be energy insecure is to suffer Despite the heavy toll of energy insecurity most people confront these difficulties behind closed doors believing it is a private matter Thus the enormous social crisis of energy insecurity goes unnoticed Hernandez and Laird argue that household energy is a basic human right and detail policies and practices that would expand access to consistent safe clean and affordable energy Their proposals include improving the current energy safety net which is limited and often does not serve the most energy insecure due to stringent program requirements and administrative burdens They also suggest redesigning rates to accommodate income promoting enrollment and expansion of discount programs reforming utility disconnection policies improving energy literacy and ensuring an equitable shift to renewable energy resources Powerless creates a comprehensive picture of the complex social and environmental issue of energy insecurity and shows how energy equity is not just an aspiration but an achievable reality

Schrag, 2001-11-30 In 1993 Congress created a student loan repayment plan intended to enable high debt graduates to accept low income public service jobs by reducing their loan payments and eventually forgiving part of their debts But this Congressional initiative only helps those with catastrophically low incomes It has failed to attract many users because as implemented through regulations of the U S Department of Education it requires payment over too long a period 25 years before forgiveness Many students go to graduate and professional schools in pursuit of careers in public service But they often must borrow 100 000 or more to finance their education Their loan repayment obligations become so high that they can no longer afford to follow their ideals and they abandon their plans to have public service careers and seek employment with corporations or firms offering high salaries The income contingent repayment plan should have appealed to would be public interest lawyers who are among the graduates with the highest debt to income ratios but the plan has failed them and Schrag explores why and how the plan should be reformed either by Congress or by the federal administration     Departments of Labor, Health and Human Services, Education, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2000: Department of Labor United States.
