An African On The Silk Road:

Africa's Silk Road Harry G. Broadman, 2006-11-08 China and India's new found interest in trade and investment with Africa home to 300 million of the globe's poorest people and the world's most formidable development challenge presents a significant opportunity for growth and integration of the Sub-Saharan continent into the global economy Africa's Silk Road finds that China and India's South-South commerce with Africa is about far more than natural resources opening the way for Africa to become a processor of commodities and a competitive supplier of goods and services to these countries a major departure from its long established relations with the North A growing number of Chinese and Indian businesses active in Africa operate on a global scale work with world class technologies produce products and services according to the most demanding standards and foster the integration of African businesses into advanced markets There are significant imbalances however in these emerging commercial relationships These can be addressed through a series of reforms in all countries At the border reforms such as elimination of China and India's escalating tariffs on Africa's leading exports and elimination of Africa's tariffs on certain inputs that make exports uncompetitive Behind the border reforms in Africa to unleash competitive market forces and strengthen its basic market institutions Between the border improvements in trade facilitation mechanisms to decrease transactions costs Reforms that leverage linkages between investment and trade to allow African businesses to participate in global production networks that investments by Chinese and Indian firms can generate

Africa at a Turning Point? Delfin Sia Go, John Page, 2008-04-14 Since the mid 1990s sub Saharan Africa has experienced an acceleration of economic growth that has produced rising incomes and faster human development However this growth contrasts with the continent's experience between 1975 and 1995 when it largely missed out on two decades of economic progress This disparity between Africa's current experience and its history raises questions about the continent's development Is there a turnaround in Africa's economy Will growth persist Africa at a Turning Point is a collection of essays that analyzes three interrelated aspects of Africa's recent revival The first set of essays examines Africa's recent growth in the context of its history of growth accelerations and collapses It seeks to answer such questions as is Africa at a turning point Are the economic fundamentals finally pointing toward more sustainable growth The second set of essays looks at donor flows which play a large role in Africa's growth These essays focus on such issues as the management and delivery of increased aid and the history and volatility of donor flows to Africa The third set of essays considers the recent impact of one persistent threat to sustained growth in Africa commodity price shocks particularly those resulting from fluctuations in oil prices

China in Africa Chris Alden, 2010-08-17 Nowhere in the world is China's rapid rise to power more evident than in Africa From multi billion dollar investments in oil and minerals to the influx of thousands of merchants labourers and cheap consumer goods China's economic and political reach is redefining Africa's traditional ties with the international community This book investigates the emerging relationship between China and Africa to determine whether this engagement will be that of a development partner economic competitor or new hegemon Alden argues that in order to understand Chinese involvement on the continent we need to recognize the range of economic diplomatic and security rationales behind Beijing's Africa policy as well as the response of African elites to China's entreaties Only then can the new challenges and opportunities for Africa and the West be accurately assessed

China into Africa Robert I. Rotberg, 2009-10-01 Africa has long attracted China We can date their first certain involvement from the fourteenth century but East African city states may have been trading with southern China even earlier In the mid twentieth century Maoist China funded and educated sub Saharan African anticolonial liberation movements and leaders and the PRC then assisted new sub Saharan nations Africa and China are now immersed in their third and most transformative era of heavy engagement one that promises to do more for economic growth and poverty alleviation than anything attempted by Western colonialism or international aid programs Robert Rotberg and his Chinese African and other colleagues discuss this important trend and specify its likely implications Among the specific topics tackled here are China's interest in African oil military and security relations the influx and goals of Chinese aid to sub-Saharan Africa human rights issues and China's overall strategy in the region China's insatiable demand for energy and raw materials responds to sub-Saharan Africa's relatively abundant supplies of unprocessed metals diamonds and gold while offering a growing market for Africa's agriculture and light manufactures As this book illustrates this evolving symbiosis could be the making of Africa the poorest and most troubled continent while it further powers China's expansive economic machine Contributors include Deborah Brautigam American University Harry Broadman World Bank Stephen Brown University of Ottawa Martyn J Davies Stellenbosch University Joshua Eisenman UCLA Chin Hao Huang Stockholm International Peace Research Institute Paul Hubbard Australian Department of the Treasury Wenran Jiang University of Alberta Darren Kew University of Massachusetts Boston Henry Lee Harvard University Li Anshan Peking University Ndubisi Obiorah Centre for Law and Social Action Nigeria Stephanie Rupp National University of Singapore Dan Shalmon Georgetown University David Shinn George Washington University Chandra Lekha Sriram University of East London and Yusuf Atang Tanko University of Massachusetts Boston

Nationalism, Globalization, and Africa M. Amoah, 2011-11-16 Nationalism especially supranationalism is the bane of global governance and globalization Whereas globalization seeks to unify the globe to function to advantage supranationalisms operate to frustrate the coherence and achievement of this aim This book delves into the Theories of Nationalism the contours of supranational activity within global politics international political economy and global trade alliances vis vis Africa The book also identifies a list of African countries with identical issues serial political difficulties or time bombs ticking and examines the performance of their political economies and new security challenges using global indicators
