Aerospace power in urban warfare beware the hornet's nest, 2001 This is the 39th volume in the Occasional Paper series of the U S Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS Aerospace power has emerged as a primary military instrument of choice in pursuing national objectives within the complex international security environment entering the 21st century Changes in the security landscape the dynamics of sub theater conflicts and coalition imperatives combine to place new requirements on aerospace operational planning and the conduct of aerospace operations themselves Occasional Papers 38 and 39 address in turn both political and operational dimensions of aerospace power application today They are presented both for informational and educational purposes to offer informed perspectives on important aspects of contemporary aerospace operations to generate informed discussion and to bound productive debate on aerospace power in both supported and supporting roles In Occasional Paper 38 Constraints Restraints and the Role of Aerospace Power in the 21st Century Jeffrey Beene presents a comprehensive examination of the use of aerospace power within tightly restrained conflicts and suggests improvements in doctrine training and tools to more effectively employ such power within that environment In this Occasional Paper Aerospace Power in Urban Warfare Beware the Hornet s Nest Peter Hunt examines the employment of aerospace power in the increasingly important urban operational environment Aerospace technologies and systems offer alternatives and important adjuncts to surface forces in the urban arena but significant obstacles and critical considerations must be brought into planning for such operations Each of these aspects of aerospace power demands greater thought and analysis and these two occasional papers are presented to help focus that attention Aerospace Power in Urban

Warfare: Beware the Hornet's Nest Usaf Institute USAF Institute for National Security Studies, 2014-12-06 As the U S Armed Forces continue to debate post Cold War roles and missions a significant intellectual divide has developed concerning the approach to operations in urban environments The bulk of professional literature on this subject deals with methods to improve the capabilities of the infantryman around whom an urban force would best be structured New technologies and experiments seek to provide the foot soldier with better communications improved ability to fire and maneuver through the urban jungle and protection from a variety of threats An alternative approach to the challenge of urban environments emphasizes joint operational concepts that achieve operational and strategic objectives with minimum risk to friendly forces This perspective steps back from a pure infantry fight and seeks the best means to influence the urban environment from the pre crisis phase through conflict termination and transition New technologies and procedures provide friendly commanders with improved intelligence enabling him to understand and shape the crisis in consonance with strategic goals Based on the improved situational awareness commanders can orchestrate precision strikes that use a wide variety of lethal and non lethal munitions appropriate for the situation Aerospace Power in Urban Warfare Peter C. Global Insurgency Strategy and the Salafi Jihad Movement Richard H. Shultz, 2008 In this paper the author differentiates and characterizes terrorists and insurgents and he conducts a detailed conceptual and historical analysis of insurgency and its current manifestation on a global scale by the Salafi Jihad movement This work lays out the case that terrorism and insurgency differ and that the current long war is actually being fought by the other side as an insurgency As a result the United States must amend and adapt its strategy to one of global counterinsurgency beyond a global war on terrorism alone

The Common European Security and Defense Policy (ESDP) Edward G. Gunning, 2001 As the United States continues to adjust to its role in the post Cold War world the transatlantic partnership remains fundamental to US security concerns Commander Gunning alpha s paper is a wake up call suggesting that Europe is concerned about US intransigence when it comes the security partnership with Europe While the United States has often encouraged the Europeans to improve capabilities and take on a greater share of the defensive burden their recent efforts to do so have often been viewed as paradoxical to US concerns Policymakers on this side of the Atlantic worry that Europe in some ways is moving towards going it alone with the development of the European Security and Defense Policy ESDP Still US desires for increased burdensharing need to be reconciled with ESDP Commander Gunning highlights these differences and spells out how in his opinion it is possible for the United States to remain engaged in Europe and to allow the European Union to develop its own defense identity The differences of opinion between the two sides are more speed bumps than road blocks and some disagreement and frustration is to be expected The conclusion here is that security interests on both sides of the Atlantic will be served in the long run by encouraging the development of a more autonomous European defense capability and through American patience as that process unfolds

Forward US Policy Towards Secession in the Balkans and Effectiveness of de Facto Partition Evelyn N. Farkas, Beth L. Makros, Jeremy C. Saunders, 2001 In the first paper US Policy Towards Secession In The Balkans And Effectiveness Of De Facto Partition Evelyn Farkas addresses inherently non military contextual challenges encountered by military forces during NATO efforts to make or enforce peace in Bosnia and Kosovo She highlights significant problems that have emerged in both former Yugoslavian states namely that the initial progress towards establishing stable multiethnic states has been stalled by criminal networks and the lack of functioning central governments She concludes that civil and military peace implementers must be more aggressive in administering the protectorates NATO has established in order to advance the political and economic reforms that are needed to achieve a lasting peace Her efforts help to detail the struggle of institution building that accompanies peace enforcement and peacekeeping efforts INSS website Violent Systems Troy S. Thomas, William D. Casebeer, 2004 View from the East Brent J. Talbot, 2003 This is the 48th volume in the Occasional Paper series of the U S Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS This timely and insightful set of papers written by two USAF area specialists provides complementary and together comprehensive coverage of the critical topic of Arab perceptions of United States policy Further the papers expand that coverage to address in detail some of the implications of those perceptions for U S military presence and policy in the region Brent Talbot focuses his analysis on the key segment of the region s population that stands between the totally dispossessed and deprived radical base and some entrenched corrupt regimes This Arab majority he argues can reshape the region s states into culturally compatible and accountable if not purely democratic by western standards revisionist Arab and Islamic political and economic states that are much more compatible with U S values and presence This is a significant message in terms of the longer term strategic postscript to the current U S Iraq conflict Mike Meyer focuses his analysis at the more operational level of U S military personnel on the ground in the region but comes to complementary conclusions as to U S public diplomacy and presence He argues that American military personnel and programs must purposefully shape the relationships and through them perceptions and attitudes with the emerging military and political leaders in this region of transition This approach also provides a key element to the state building exercise that will likely soon present itself Together the two papers suggest a wisdom of experience academic and practical that is essential to the high stakes endgame that lies before us Strategic Culture and Violent Non-state Actors James M. Smith, Jerry Mark Long, Thomas H. Johnson, 2008 This paper combines three separate threads of analysis on culture and violent nonstate actors as a launching pad to spur further research into this critical arena of culture and security Jim Smith lays out a series of templates for guiding analysis of culture and violent nonstate actors Mark Long applies cultural analysis of radical Islam and alQaida in discussing the influences involved in the core al Qaida group s WMD decisions Tom

Johnson in examining a tribal insurgent psychological campaign in Afghanistan demonstrates that behavioral influences can be manipulated for significant effect in countering our efforts to gain stability and legitimacy for the Afghan government

Northeast Asia Regional Security and the United States Military ,2002 This is the 47th volume in the Occasional Paper series of the United States Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS Among its many contributions to United States security two noted repositories of strategic expertise within the United States Army are its foreign area officer cadre and the Department of Social Sciences faculty at the United States Military Academy This collection of papers on Northeast Asian regional security taps the combined strength of both its authors are four Army officers with demonstrated regional expertise all currently or formerly assigned to West Point s Department of Social Sciences The combined set of papers covers a broad and relevant swath of territory both geographic and conceptual The first paper by Jay Parker addresses the regional security context with special emphasis on that strategic landscape as viewed from the perspective of Japanese security and the United States role both in Japanese security and within the broader region Sue Bryant then fits the Korean peninsula into that regional security context adding special emphasis on the Korean road toward unification and on the continuing U S military presence in Korea both for peninsular and regional security reasons Finally Russ Howard and Al Wilner add China to the mix and also add the third level of analysis their focus is on post September 11 2001 issues and opportunities and the specific military to military dimension of the United States overall military presence and policy Together the papers cover the region as well as policy recommendations from macro U S security and military policy to force presence to the significant roles of individual service members

Arms Control Without Arms Control Guy B. Roberts,2003 This is the 49th volume in the Occasional Paper series of the U S Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS Among the many dimensions of national security that face unprecedented changes and challenges after the end of the Cold War arms control has been as directly affected as any other dimension The formal bilateral and verification based arms control that was so central to that former period fits neither the new environment nor the expanded focus beyond the strategic nuclear arena In this paper Guy Roberts presents yet another of his insightful explanations and analyses of the adaptations and new directions that are required to give arms control continued relevance today and tomorrow This thorough analysis of the special case of biological warfare controls follows his January 2001 INSS Occasional Paper 36 This Arms Control Dog Won t Hunt The Proposed Fissile Material Cut Off Treaty at the Conference on Disarmament in chronicling both the failure of continuing emphasis on formal Cold War type arms control products and the enduring centrality of cooperative arms control processes in the current national security environment In Roberts line of argument arms control is indeed dead yet arms control can and must be reborn in the form of a wide range of integrally linked and multifaceted legal diplomatic economic and military instruments to effectively fight the spread and use of dangerous weapons and systems      Carrot, Stick, Or Sledgehammer Daniel J. Orcutt,2004 This thesis evaluates three U S policy options for North Korean nuclear weapons incentive based diplomacy coercive diplomacy or military force It analyzes them according to four criteria the impact on North Korea s nuclear weapons the impact on its neighbors China Japan and South Korea U S policy costs and the precedent for future proliferation This thesis shows that diplomacy will fail to achieve U S objectives for three reasons lack of trust DPRK reluctance to permit transparency and the difficulty of conducting multilateral coercive diplomacy Ultimately Deputy Secretary of State Richard Armitage s question must be answered What price is the United States willing to pay to disarm North Korean nuclear weapons If Washington is unwilling to back a threat of military force it should not risk coercive diplomacy Likewise U S leaders may need to decide between maintaining the U S ROK alliance and eliminating North Korean nuclear weapons      The Worried Well Fran Pilch,2004      "All Our Tomorrows" James M. Smith,2002 This is the 44th volume in the Occasional Paper series of the United States Air Force Institute for National Security Studies INSS This report summarizes a three phase research project undertaken by the USAF Institute for National Security Studies on behalf of the Defense Threat Reduction Agency to forecast long range global trends affecting arms control technologies The report projects the international political economic and scientific environments to the year 2015 It posits economic and technological drivers as shaping the system including its military and political dimensions The result will be a two tiered system with great danger arising from significant proliferation in the second tier and the transition zone between tiers The report next draws conclusions from this likely future for the scope value and practice of arms control Arms control will be focused less on limitation and reduction of existing weapons although the endgame between the United States and Russia will remain a significant effort The focus will shift to the less well defined realm of counterproliferation and to marginal failing and failed states as well as nontraditional and non state actors New dimensions will be added including control efforts toward small arms advanced conventional weapons military space and information operations The report then extrapolates from this future to assess the likely arms control technology requirements in cooperative noncooperative intrusive and nonintrusive regimes The projection here is continuing requirements for each of these specialized sets of technologies with particular emphasis on multiple use technologies for remote arms control compliance and verification monitoring as well as for intelligence detection and collection      The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1972      Flying Magazine ,1944-10      The Role of Airpower in Urban Warfare US Air Force,TIMOTHY L. SAFFOLD,2025-05-22 This research project addresses how I believe airpower should be employed in urban warfare to achieve operational and strategic results I chose this topic because there is an apparent disconnection between how military planners and operators view urban combat and their aware ness of airpower s unique and potentially decisive contributions in this environment This disconnect could prove disastrous for military forces operating on urban terrain Urban warfare has been given considerable attention by the United States Army and Marine Corps Although their concerns are soundly based on changes in the strategic environment I believe their focus is misplaced at the tactical level of warfare Airmen from all services need to reorient their thinking towards employing airpower to achieve war winning operational and strategic results in this difficult environment I sincerely hope this paper generates new thought and debate on how urban warfare should be planned and executed I wish to thank all of my Marine Corps Army Navy and Air Force war fighting peers attending the Air Command and Staff College who patiently listened to my ideas and graciously offered their suggestions I especially want to thank Maj Ed K 9 Kostelnik one of the few Air Force officers who has seriously been involved in studying urban warfare for his candid insight and arguments on the subject This work has been selected by scholars as being culturally important and is part of the knowledge base of civilization as we know it This work was reproduced from the original artifact and remains as true to the original work as possible Therefore you will see the original copyright references library stamps as most of these works have been housed in our most important libraries around the world and other notations in the work This work is in the public domain in the United States of America and possibly other nations Within the United States you may freely copy and distribute this work as no entity individual or corporate has a copyright on the body of the work As a reproduction of a historical artifact this work may contain missing or blurred pages poor pictures errant marks etc Scholars believe and we concur that this work is important enough to be preserved reproduced and made generally available to the public We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant
