Tabloid Journalism in South Africa Herman Wasserman,2010-05-31 Less than a decade after the advent of democracy in South Africa tabloid newspapers have taken the country by storm One of these papers the Daily Sun is now the largest in the country but it has generated controversy for its perceived lack of respect for privacy brazen sexual content and unrestrained truth stretching Herman Wasserman examines the success of tabloid journalism in South Africa at a time when global print media are in decline He considers the social significance of the tabloids and how they play a role in integrating readers and their daily struggles with the political and social sphere of the new democracy Wasserman shows how these papers have found an important niche in popular and civic culture largely ignored by the mainstream media and formal political channels The Press and Apartheid William A. Hachten,C.Anthony Giffard,1984-06-18 Assessing Academic Literacy in a Multilingual Society Albert Weideman,John Read,Theo du Plessis,2020-11-02 South African universities face major challenges in meeting the needs of their students in the area of academic language and literacy The dominant medium of instruction in the universities is English and to a much lesser extent Afrikaans but only a minority of the national population are native speakers of these languages Nine other languages can be media of instruction in schools which makes the transition to tertiary education difficult enough in itself for students from these schools The focus of this book is on procedures for assessing the academic language and literacy levels and needs of students not in order to exclude students from higher education but rather to identify those who would benefit from further development of their ability in order to undertake their degree studies successfully The volume also aims to bring the innovative solutions designed by South African educators to a wider international audience Ulrich's International Periodicals Directory Carolyn Farquhar Ulrich,1999
