Everything Was Better in America David Welky,2010-10-01 As a counterpart to research on the 1930s that has focused on liberal and radical writers calling for social revolution David Welky offers this eloquent study of how mainstream print culture shaped and disseminated a message affirming conservative middle class values and assuring its readers that holding to these values would get them through hard times Through analysis of the era s most popular newspaper stories magazines and books Welky examines how voices both outside and within the media debated the purposes of literature and the meaning of cultural literacy in a mass democracy He presents lively discussions of such topics as the newspaper treatment of the Lindbergh kidnapping issues of race in coverage of the 1936 Olympic games domestic dynamics and gender politics in cartoons and magazines Superman s evolution from a radical outsider to a spokesman for the people and the popular consumption of such novels as the Ellery Queen mysteries Gone with the Wind and The Good Earth Through these close readings Welky uncovers the subtle relationship between the messages that mainstream media strategically crafted and those that their target audience wished to hear Mark at the Threshold Geoff R.

Webb,2008-07-31 The discussion concerning Markan characterisation and Markan genre can be helpfully informed by Bakhtinian categories This book uses the twin foci of chronotope and carnival to examine specific characters in terms of different levels of dialogue Various passages in Mark are examined and thresholds are noted between interindividual character zones and between the hearing reader and text voices Several generic contacts are shown to have shaped the text s genre memory in particular the Graeco Roman popular literature of the ancient world The resultant picture is of an earthy populist Gospel whose voices resonate with the vulgar classes and whose spirituality is refreshingly relevant to everyday concerns Adventure Time Vol. 14 Pendleton Ward,Mariko Tamaki,2018-04-17 Adventure Time stories from multiple
