Migration, Family and the Welfare State Karen Fog Olwig, Birgitte Romme Larsen, Mikkel Rytter, 2013-09-13 Migration Family and the Welfare State explores understandings and practices of integration in the Scandinavian welfare societies of Denmark Norway and Sweden through a comprehensive range of detailed ethnographic studies Chapters examine discourses policies and programs of integration in the three receiving societies studying how these are experienced by migrant and refugee families as they seek to realize the hopes and ambitions for a better life that led them to leave their country of origin The three Scandinavian countries have had parallel histories as welfare societies receiving increasing numbers of migrants and refugees after World War II and yet they have reacted in dissimilar ways to the presence of foreigners with Denmark developing tough immigration policies and nationalist integration requirements Sweden asserting itself as a relatively open country with an official multicultural policy and Norway taking a middle position The book analyses the impact of these differences and similarities on immigrants refugees and their descendants across three intersecting themes integration as a welfare state project integration as political discourse and practice and integration as immigrants and refugees quest for improvement and belonging This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Ethnic and Migration Studies Rethinking Climate Change Research Pernille Almlund,2016-04-08 The problems and debates surrounding climate change possess closely intertwined social and scientific aspects This book highlights the importance of researching climate change through a multi disciplinary approach namely through cultural studies communication studies and clean technology studies These three dimensions taken together have the ability to constitute a positive agenda for climate change science in its broader understanding To cope with the climate change challenge not only do we need new energy efficient technologies other ways of living and new ways to communicate but we especially need new ways to start thinking about climate change across disciplines and backgrounds We need to begin thinking across engineering cultural science and communication in order to create innovative solutions as well as to generate optimistic and progressive narratives about the future Accentuating these softer scientific disciplines their overlaps and the positive discourses they can create this book provides some more profoundly researched themes pertaining to climate change and by that strengthening the analytical as well as the integrative approaches toward the fundamental questions at stake

Jesus Imandars and Christ Bhaktas Jonas Adelin Jørgensen, 2008 The massive changes of Christianity during the 20th century raise the perennial question about its identity in a new radical form The author addresses the question of identity and asks how globalisation religious pluralism and the polycentric nature of Christianity affect Christian self identification and theological reflection First religious life and theological reflection among believers in Jesus from Muslim and Hindu background in South Asia is presented in two empirical studies Secondly the findings are analysed and interpreted within a broad theoretical framework drawing on models for syncretistic processes from history of religions cultural anthropology and Christian theology Finally the study concludes with a systematic theological perspective on the interreligious hermeneutics underlying the changes of Christianity and discusses how interreligious hermeneutics might inform missiology as well as Christian theologies of religions and how this might challenge our understanding of the church's nature and mission In conclusion it is argued that a global polycentric Christianity can be interpreted as fellowship created by the Spirit and centred on Christ Dansk botanisk arkiv ,1915 Communications de l'Institut sérothérapique de l'état danois Statens seruminstitut (Denmark),1920
