Office of Management and Budget, 2015 The Budget of the United States Government United States, 2016 Protests, discrimination and the future of minorities in Iran, 2022-11-24 This briefing examines how discrimination against minorities has contributed to rising tensions and long standing grievances in Iran It highlights patterns of repression of minority activism languages and cultures and to varying degrees the exclusion of ethnic and religious minorities from public life and economic development In particular the briefing focuses on the experiences of ethnic minorities in the borderland regions of the country where the centralizing impulse of the Islamic Republic of Iran has manifested itself in the attempted assimilation of minorities repression of regional demands for self governance and periodic episodes of violence Using a minority rights lens the briefing contextualises and historicises the social uprising that was sparked in September 2022 with the custodial death of Jina Amini also known as Mahsa Amini It provides insight into some of the conditions that have fuelled protestor demands in recent years including environmental problems political corruption widespread economic crises and repression of civil society This briefing ultimately emphasizes identity based discrimination as a root cause of many conditions that led to the 2022 civil society uprising Although the political future of Iran remains uncertain and the pathway of change is unclear at the time of writing this briefing argues that a peaceful and prosperous future for minorities cannot be secured unless efforts are undertaken to address long standing and structural discrimination at all levels While this briefing focuses on discrimination against minorities a detailed and complementary analysis and account of gender based discrimination in Iran can be found in the report Beyond the Veil Discrimination against women in

It brings out the intricacies of representational discourses around cultural practices of female circumcision (FC), female genital cutting (FGC) and Islamic veiling. Focusing on crucial international legal texts and national legislation, the book gives an overview of the cultural nuances in FC, FGC and juxtaposes it with the Indian variation, khafz. The author studies the international veiling narratives that conjure up a fractured discourse containing aspects of colonialism, Islamophobia and Islamic fashion and maps them with the regional variations of Islamic purdah in India. The volume explores the cultural practice of khafz and purdah through narratives in India, portraying how representational factors from international discourses reflect on the Indian context and vice versa. Amid the world of binaries and polarised opinions, the book offers a nuanced analysis of the space in between, characterised by narratives from women. By situating women's narratives in relation to family, community, state and international politics, the book explores the global Indian interplay of discourses on FC, FGC and Islamic veiling. This volume will be of interest to scholars, students and readers of gender studies, feminism, cultural and religious studies, sociology, South Asian studies and International Relations.      Commonwealth Universities Yearbook T.
