The Oxford Handbook of Kenyan Politics Nic Cheeseman, Karuti Kanyinga, Gabrielle Lynch, 2020-02-14 Kenya is one of the most politically dynamic and influential countries in sub Saharan Africa Today it is known in equal measure as a country that has experienced great highs and tragic lows In the 1960s and 1970s Kenya was seen as a success story of development in the periphery and also led the way in terms of democratic breakthroughs in 2010 when a new constitution devolved power and placed new constraints on the president However the country has also made international headlines for the kind of political instability that occurs when electoral violence is expressed along ethnic lines such as during the Kenya crisis of 2007 08 when over 1 000 people lost their lives and almost 700 000 were displaced The Oxford Handbook of Kenyan Politics explains these developments and many more drawing together 50 specially commissioned chapters by leading researchers The chapters they have contributed address a range of essential topics including the legacy of colonial rule ethnicity land politics devolution the constitution elections democracy foreign aid the informal economy civil society human rights the International Criminal Court the growing influence of China economic policy electoral violence and the impact of mobile phone technology In addition to covering some of the most important debates about Kenyan politics the volume provides an insightful overview of Kenyan history from 1930 to the present day and features a set of chapters that review the impact of devolution on regional politics in every part of the country

Forest Politics in Kenya's Tugen Hills Léa Lacan, 2024 Forests are a changing environment impacted as much by people and politics as by the species rich diversity they contain This book explores human sylvan relations in the Katimok forest Baringo highlands Kenya and asks us to rethink the forest beyond questions of access and control of natural resources as a habitat where forest politics and human lives are inextricably intertwined Tracing the development of the Katimok forest from colonial times to the present day the author shows how as with many forests in Africa it has become constructed as a category and territory of nature under state control an area both to be protected and turned into exploitable resources For those living within and on the boundaries of the forest this social ecological transformation has had a significant impact Despite now being settled outside Katimok itself dispossessed by administrators heedless of local management practices many former residents continue to maintain a close connection with the forest not only to sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods

but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions sustain their livelihoods but also to maintain their intimate links with ancestral lands where their stories and memories are materially inscribed and powerfully invoked Intimate connections to the forest are revealed to be as political as the use of its resources culminating in local claims for redress of historical dispossessions

Smart Economy in Smart Cities T. M. Vinod Kumar, 2016-08-25 The present book highlights studies that show how smart cities promote urban economic development The book surveys the state of the art of Smart City Economic Development through a literature survey The book uses 13 in depth city research case studies in 10 countries such as the North America Europe Africa and Asia to explain how a smart economy changes the urban spatial system and vice versa This book focuses on exploratory city studies in different countries which investigate how urban spatial systems adapt to the specific needs of smart urban economy The theory of smart city economic development is not yet entirely understood and applied in metropolitan regional plans Smart urban economies are largely the result of the influence of ICT applications on all aspects of urban economy which in turn changes the land use system It points out that the dynamics of smart city GDP creation takes different paths which need further empirical study hypothesis testing and mathematical modelling Although there are hypotheses on how smart cities generate wealth and social benefits for nations there are no significant empirical studies available on how they generate urban economic development through urban spatial adaptation This book with 13 cities research studies is one attempt to fill in the gap in knowledge base

Soil Degradation and Restoration in Africa Rattan Lal, B. A. Stewart, 2019-07-09 Soil degradation is a widespread problem in Africa resulting in decreased agricultural productivity while demand for food continues to increase Degradation is caused by accelerated erosion acidification contamination depletion of soil organic matter and plant nutrients and salinization The major cause of soil degradation in Africa is uncontrolled and excessive grazing in the savanna regions followed by deforestation and the use of inappropriate and extractive farming practices Perpetual neglect of the health of soils in Africa can exacerbate the already serious problems of food and nutritional insecurity and environmental degradation

Food and nutritional security of the growing population of Africa can only be achieved if degraded soils are restored and soils of agroecosystems are managed prudently and sustainably Ignoring soils and taking the fragile finite and precious soil resources for granted is the principal cause of poverty hunger and environmental degradation The downward spiral must be reversed through soil restoration measures based on translating science into action This book describes the soils of Africa processes of soil degradation extent and severity of soil degradation and the impacts of degradation processes on food and nutritional security Features Explores the extent and severity of soil degradation in Africa Analyzes the cause effect relationship between anthropogenic activities and soil degradation Reviews processes of soil degradation in Africa including erosion salinization nutrient depletion and decline of soil organic matter Addresses the effect of climate change on soil degradation in Africa Explains how soil degradation causes food and nutritional insecurity Part of the Advances in Soil Sciences series this volume is specifically devoted to the processes and factors that cause soil degradation and the challenges and potential for remediation and restoration of soil health in Africa The Sustainable City XII C.A. Regional Economic Outlook, October 2016, Sub-Saharan Africa International Monetary Fund. African Dept.,2016-10-25
Economic growth in sub Saharan Africa this year is set to drop to its lowest level in more than 20 years reflecting the adverse external environment and a lackluster policy response in many countries However the aggregate picture is one of multispeed growth while most of non resource intensive countries half of the countries in the region continue to perform well as they benefit from lower oil prices an improved business environment and continued strong infrastructure investment most commodity exporters are under severe economic strains This is particularly the case for oil exporters whose near term prospects have worsened significantly in recent months Sub Saharan Africa remains a region of immense economic potential but policy adjustment in the hardest hit countries needs to be enacted promptly to allow for a growth rebound
