ONCIX Reports to Congress: Foreign Economic and Industrial Espionage , Annual Report to Congress on Foreign Economic Collection and Industrial Espionage ,1994 Monthly Catalog of United States Government Publications ,2004

Annual Report to Congress on Foreign Economic Collection and Industrial Espionage -- 2003 ,2004 This ninth annual report reviews the threat to the United States from foreign economic collection and industrial espionage The report seeks to characterize and assess efforts by foreign entities government and private to unlawfully target or acquire critical U S technologies trade secrets and sensitive financial or proprietary economic information Although the title implies a heavy emphasis on technologies acquired for economic purposes in reality it is difficult to determine the motives military or commercial of those targeting U S technologies Furthermore sensitive U S technologies initially acquired by foreign entities for military use frequently find their way into commercial application and vice versa This paper makes no attempt to differentiate technologies acquired for civilian use from those acquired for military purposes Instead it focuses on all technologies the loss of which could undermine U S military superiority impede the ability of the United States to compete in the world marketplace and or have an adverse effect on the U S economy eventually weakening national security The report is being submitted in compliance with the Intelligence Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 1995 Section 809 b Public Law 103 359 which requires that the President annually submit to Congress updated information on the threat to U S industry from foreign economic collection and industrial espionage This report updates the eighth annual report published in February 2003 Unlike earlier reports that include data for only one year this one includes information for calendar year 2002 and for January to September 2003 Data in the next annual report will be provided on a fiscal year basis the tenth annual report will contain data for 1 October 2003 through 30 September 2004 Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents ,2005 Securing U.S. Innovation Darren E. Tromblay,Robert G. Spelbrink,2016-09-08 As experienced by the United States competition has played out in three distinct types of threat activity sabotage the destruction of capabilities espionage the theft of specific capabilities and defection the carrying of knowledge out of the country Today the changing innovation environment has created new challenges Significant advances are being made in start ups as well as larger companies who no longer rely on U S government contracts Not only does this place a key element of national power in the hands of the private sector but it often leaves Washington at an informational disadvantage in understanding technologies This book analyzes these concepts from the perspective of the United States experience in the field of innovation security Historical and recent examples illustrate the threats to innovation the various approaches to mitigating them and how the evolution of the innovative process now requires rethinking how the United States can benefit from and preserve its cutting edge human capital Intelligence Mark M.
