Answer 1: We debated between two options immigration had given us: going back to Nicaragua or staying in the US with no hope of ever going back.

Answer 2: We debated between two options immigration had given us: to go back to Nicaragua or to stay in the US with no hope of ever going back.

2. My uncle Julius likes bagels, lox, and eating chicken salad.

Answer 1: My uncle Julius likes bagels, lox, and chicken salad.

Answer 2: My uncle Julius likes eating bagels, lox, and chicken salad. $x(a + b + c)$

Answer 3: My uncle Julius likes eating bagels, eating lox, and eating chicken salad. $xa + xb + xc$

Teaching Tip: I wouldn't recommend Answer 3; it's too wordy, but it IS useful to use as an example of "can't miss" parallelism. I like to use the distributive property of multiplication. Sometimes a mathematical concept illuminates a syntactic structure. Students get a kick out of it. I point out to students that in Answer 2, eating is "distributed" over bagels, lox, and chicken salad.

3. Bill not only runs five miles every day, he consumes eight thousand calories.

Answer 1: Bill not only runs five miles every day, but he also consumes eight thousand calories.

Answer 2: Bill runs five miles every day and consumes eight thousand calories.

Teaching Tip: The response we are going for is Answer 1, but there's really nothing wrong with a response like Answer 2. It is simple, with one subject (Bill) and a compound predicate (runs + consumes). While Answer 1 is more elegant than Answer 2, the second may be more useful in the long run, for most students. But do TRY to teach the stylistic variation of not only ... but also. This construction gives emphasis an idea.

4. Jose's daughter will either attend Harvard, or she plans to go to the Stanford.

Answer 1: Jose's daughter will attend either Harvard or Stanford.

Answer 2: Either Jose's daughter will attend Harvard, or she will attend Stanford.

Teaching Tip: Obviously, Answer 1 is much better than 2. It is shorter and clearer. I tell students, "In writing, as in life, LESS IS MORE." (Usually!)

The other members of the Classics Club are equally as fascinating. Bunny Corcoran is a wealthy and spoiled young man who is always looking for a good time. Camilla Macaulay is a beautiful and intelligent young woman who is drawn to the power and danger of the Classics Club. The students are all deeply in love with Morrow, and they are willing to do anything to please him. As the students become more involved with Morrow, they begin to commit increasingly dangerous acts. The Secret History is a exceptional and thrilling novel that will keep you wondering until the very end. The novel is a warning tale about the dangers of obsession and the power of evil.
