Data, Governance and Narrative Scott Edward

Bennett, 2025-03-31 This book examines how participants in governance and public affairs use data and information in defining public problems and their solutions. It is based on 18 in-depth interviews with various kinds of participants in the public realm in Canada and the UK: legislators, interest group representatives, journalists, and civil servants. Responses are examined against the backdrop of two classical perspectives on decision making. It explores the types of data respondents emphasized in their work and what model of decision making best reflected the realities of defining problems and selecting solutions in governance. The book demonstrates how there is a significant interplay between the long and short-term aspects of governance. Narratives and data are inextricably intertwined in governance. The book explores the role of narratives in linking portrayals of the public good to problem definition and solution creation. It presents practical insights on how to approach generating and using data for the guidance of governing decisions, the implications of various kinds of research designs, and for the normative practice of governance.
