BUICK RAINIER

Exploring the backwaters of Nubia. Off-roading in the Outback. Climbing into the foothills of the Himalayas. Lots of SUVs use exotic locations to prove their prowess. Buick designed Rainier for a more demanding scenario: trekking through the landscape of 21st century America. So Rainier has the size and strength to easily haul a face cord of firewood¹ or tow the family ski boat. But it also has a smooth, controlled ride to help you navigate pothole-filled urban pavement. A luxuriously refined interior with leather-appointed seats to make the trip to the cottage a pleasure. And a peaceful, quiet-tuned cabin to make anything from a freeway jam-up to being passed by a motorcycle gang a lot less stressful. If you're not planning a foray into the Himalayas, Rainier could well be the premium SUV that's precisely right for you.
