Kerry Arthur, Richard Erwin Taylor, 1998 Floods of March-May 1965 in the Upper Mississippi River Basin David Bryan Anderson, I. L. Burmeister, 1970 The floods of March May 1965 in the upper Mississippi River basin occurred as two different events one during the latter part of February and early March and the other starting early in April and extending into May Factors contributing to the floods were rapid melting of the winter accumulation of snow heavy rains on the snow pack and deeply frozen ground throughout much of the basin which made the soil almost impervious and thereby greatly increased the amount of runoff Peak stages and discharges during the floods exceeded previous known maxima at many points Included in this report are peak stages and discharges for these floods at 333 sites flood damages effect of drainage and storage on flood peaks and the operations of the U S Geological Survey and other Federal agencies during the flood emergency U.S. Geological Survey Professional Paper ,1998 Quality of Water from Freshwater Aquifers and Principal Well Fields in the Memphis Area, Tennessee J. Szymanski, 2013-11-11 This Handbook includes all the data of the first edition and its supplements and sufficient additional material to nearly double the total number of entries It is hoped that enough entries are now given to represent most structural groups and environments Infrared spectroscopy as a tool for the identification of compounds can be used in conjunction with other methods such as NMR and UV spectroscopy or alone to quickly establish the presence or absence of particular structural groups Computer search techniques can be applied to infrared data for the identification of unknowns but the time required for the analysis will be substantial These volumes will best serve those who wish to locate infrared data quickly and without recourse to instruments or related equipment Typical applications in which the Handbook can best be utilized follow 1 Searching a specific wavelength region for samples of compounds having absorption bands in that region and relating this information to the compound under study 2 Assigning vibrations for a compound by noting assignments for similar compounds 3 Obtaining literature references 4 Obtaining optimum sample conditions for determining the spectrum of a compound 5 Identifying an unknown where data are not readily available 6 Locating literature data on band positions including references where only one band position is reported 7 Enlarging present data files including computer tapes 8 Browsing through as many data as one wishes Other mechanical or computer sources often yield too many data Senate Documents ,1896 Report of the Insurance Commissioner Pennsylvania.
