There are several places to discover the beauty and wonders of nature in Singapore. Location in the Kranji countryside is the Sungei Buloh Wetland Reserve that is home to diverse mangrove wildlives. During September to March, migratory shorebirds join native inhabits at this large sanctuary. There are two routes to explore Singapore's first ASEAN Heritage Park: a long boardwalk on the outskirts of the reserve and a longest trail deep in the reserve. Visitors are able to explore the wetlands on your own or with the help of volunteer guides. Situated on Sisters' Islands is Singapore's first marine life park when guided tours to view the marine life of the intertidal areas at low tide are available two a month. Other outlying island where one can observe Singapore's rich biodiversity is Pulau Ubin.
