Using Student Feedback to Improve Learning Materials Michael B. Nathenson, Euan S. Henderson, 2018-02-06 The use of self instructional learning materials presented through a wide range of media was becoming an increasingly pervasive and important part of the educational scene at all levels from infant school to university Much had been written both theoretical and practical about various aspects of the techniques for developing such materials However one phase of the development process while generally recognised to be critical in producing materials of high quality and educational effectiveness had been relatively neglected in the literature This is the phase of trying out the materials in draft form on students collecting feedback and undertaking revision in the light of the ensuing data Based on considerable practical experience this book originally published in 1980 examines the planning and executing of the collection of feedback from students on self instructional learning materials concerned with various subject matters and presented through various media both printed and audio visual A brief survey of the development of materials based learning is provided in order to set the use of student feedback in context and to sort out some of the terminology in common use The main part of the book illustrates a step by step method through all the stages of the try out process from initial planning of the project to final revision of the materials Thus a particular approach to the process of trying out draft materials is advocated which is outlined by means of a case study Finally there is an examination of whether using student feedback to revise learning materials can actually improve their educational quality and effectiveness with particular reference to the approach described earlier Incorporating a full bibliography this study combines a comprehensive review of what is known about this crucial phase of developing learning materials with an original how to do it guide for practitioners which has itself been subject to extensive try out

Creating Identity in the Victorian Fictional Autobiography Heidi L. Pennington, 2018-04-30 This is the first book length study of the fictional autobiography a subgenre that is at once widely recognizable and rarely examined as a literary form with its own history and dynamics of interpretation Heidi L Pennington shows that the narrative form and genre expectations associated with the fictional autobiography in the Victorian period engages readers in a sustained meditation on the fictional processes that construct selfhood both in and beyond the text Through close readings of Jane Eyre David Copperfield and other well known examples of the subgenre Pennington shows how the Victorian fictional autobiography subtly but persistently illustrates that all identities are fictions Despite the subgenre s radical implications regarding the nature of personal identity fictional autobiographies were popular in their own time and continue to inspire devotion in readers This study sheds new light on what makes this subgenre so compelling up to and including in the present historical moment of precipitous social and technological change As we continue to grapple with the existential question of what determines who we really are this book explores the risks and rewards of embracing conscious acts of fictional self production in an unstable world
