Copyright Office,1976 Cooking in Other Women's Kitchens Rebecca Sharpless,2010-10-11 As African American women left the plantation economy behind many entered domestic service in southern cities and towns Cooking was one of the primary jobs they performed feeding generations of white families and in the process profoundly shaping southern foodways and culture Rebecca Sharpless argues that in the face of discrimination long workdays and low wages African American cooks worked to assert measures of control over their own lives As employment opportunities expanded in the twentieth century most African American women chose to leave cooking for more lucrative and less oppressive manufacturing clerical or professional positions Through letters autobiography and oral history Sharpless evokes African American women's voices from slavery to the open economy examining their lives at work and at home The Truth about Baked Beans Meg Muckenhoupt, 2015-09-25 The author of Cabbage A Global History forages through New England's most famous foods for the truth behind the region's culinary myths Meg Muckenhoupt begins with a simple question When did Bostonians start making Boston Baked Beans You may have heard that the Pilgrims learned the dish from Native Americans but the recipe was actually the result of a conscious effort in the late nineteenth century to create New England foods New England foods were selected and resourcefully reinvented from fanciful stories about what English colonists cooked prior to the American revolution while pointedly ignoring the foods cooked by contemporary New Englanders especially the large immigrant populations who were powering industry and taking over farms around the region The Truth About Baked Beans explores New England's culinary myths and reality through some of the region's most famous foods baked beans brown bread clams cod and lobster maple syrup pies and Yankee pot roast From 1870 to 1920 the idea of New England food was carefully constructed in magazines newspapers and cookbooks often through fictitious and sometimes bizarre origin stories touted as time honored American legends This toothsome volume reveals the effort that went into the creation of these foods and lets us begin to reclaim the culinary heritage of immigrant New England the French Canadians Irish Italians Portuguese Polish Indigenous people African Americans and other New Englanders whose culinary contributions were erased from this version of New England food Complete with historic and contemporary recipes The Truth About Baked Beans delves into the surprising history of this curious cuisine explaining why and how New England food actually came to be Catalogue of Publications Issued by the Government of the United States United States. Superintendent of Documents, 1944-07 February issue includes Appendix entitled Directory of United States Government periodicals and subscription publications September issue includes List of depository libraries June and December issues include semiannual index Catalog Food and Nutrition Information Center (U.S.), 1974 United Tastes of the South (Southern Living) Jessica Dupuy, 2018-11-27 From the Gullah Geechee rice pirlaus of coastal South Carolina to Delta Hot Tamales from Mississippi's alluvial plains the food of the South is a multicultural melting pot The dishes of the Lowcountry are far different from what's cooking in the rolling hills of Appalachia or served in the heart of the Delta In United Tastes of the South food writer Jessica Dupuy author of United Tastes Of Texas looks beyond the Lonestar State to focus on the diverse cuisines of the American South Her exploration of the regional dishes cultural traditions and nuances of cooking styles spotlights why the South is considered one of the richest destinations on the American culinary landscape South African Poultry Magazine and Small-holder, 1927 United States Government Publications Monthly Catalog, 1944 Soviet, East German, and Cuban Involvement in Fomenting Terrorism in Southern Africa, 1982
