Alexander The Great or Alexander the Wicked?

Task: Read A Wicked History: Alexander the Great and write a persuasive essay

In this project you'll have the opportunity to reevaluate an important historical figure – Alexander The Great. Remember, just because someone or something is important doesn't mean they were a positive force in history. Think about Alexander's epithet – "The Great". What makes one great?

After reading the book, you'll write a persuasive essay explaining why you think Alexander the Great was or was not a hero. You'll need to define what a hero is. Oxford Dictionary defines one as "a person who is admired or idealized for courage, outstanding achievements, or noble qualities." You can use this definition or another you find to help guide your writing.

Your essay must include

- ☐ An introduction including a thesis statement (the thing you're going to argue: was Alexander a hero or not)
- ☐ A definition of hero, in your own words (but this can be influenced by another source that you've cited)
- ☐ Your body must include at least three detailed examples from the text to support your position. Each should be a different paragraph. Don't just list the examples, explain how/why this example shows Alexander's heroism/lack of heroism. Keep in mind your definition.
- ☐ At least one counterclaim – one possible argument against your position. You must then refute this claim and show how it does not cancel out your claim.
- ☐ A concluding paragraph summarizing your position
- ☐ Perfect spelling, grammar and mechanics – you must proofread!!
