

Frame and engine numbers

The frame serial number is stamped into the right-hand side of the steering head. The engine number is stamped into the right-hand side of the upper crankcase. Both of these numbers should be recorded and kept in a safe place so they can be given to law enforcement officials in the event of a theft. The VIN plate is on the left-hand side of the frame, on the engine hanger. There is a colour code label on the sub-frame under the seat. The throttle bodies also have an ID number stamped into them.

The frame serial number, engine serial number, and colour code should also be kept in a handy place (such as with your driver's licence) so they are always available when purchasing or ordering parts for your machine.

Models are identified using the model name, i.e. CB600F, CBF600N, CBF600S, or CBR600F for standard models and CB600FA, CBF600NA, CBF600SA or CBR600FA for models with ABS. Where the information applies to both standard and ABS models it is expressed as CB600F/FA, CBF600N/NA, CBF600S/SA or CBR600F/FA. The production year is also given where necessary. The table below shows the extended model codes (as given on the VIN plate and colour code label) and the production year(s) they relate to.

| CB600F/FA | Year |

| CB600F1/FA1 | 2007 |

Buying spare parts

Once you have found all the identification numbers, record them for reference when buying parts. Since the manufacturers change specifications, parts and vendors (companies that manufacture various components on the machine), providing the ID numbers is the only way to be reasonably sure that you are buying the correct parts for your model.

Whenever possible, take the worn part to the dealer to direct comparison with the new component can be made. Along the trail from the manufacturer to the parts shelf, there are numerous places that the part can end up with the wrong number or be listed incorrectly.

The two places to purchase new parts for your motorcycle – the franchised or main dealer and the parts/accessories store – differ in the type of parts they carry. While dealers can obtain every single genuine part for your motorcycle, the accessory store is usually limited to normal high wear items such as chains and sprockets, brake pads, spark plugs and cables, and to tune-up parts and various engine gaskets, etc. Rarely will an accessory outlet have major suspension components, camshafts, transmission gears, or engine cases.

Used parts can be obtained from breakers for roughly half the price of new ones, but you can't always be sure of what you're getting. Once again, take your worn part to the breaker for direct comparison, or when ordering by mail order make sure that you can return it if you are not happy.

Whether buying new, used or rebuilt parts, the best course is to deal directly with someone who specialises in your particular make.
