Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and energy expenditure (EE) of sedentary, middle-aged women. The subjects were 10 women, 40 to 50 years old, who had been sedentary for at least 10 years. They were randomly assigned to either a control group or a training group. The training group performed a 10-week program of aerobic exercise, three times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group did not exercise. The HR and EE were measured at rest and during a 30-minute walk on a treadmill. The HR and EE were significantly higher in the training group than in the control group at rest and during the walk. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the HR and EE of sedentary, middle-aged women.
