Autobiography- Part 2: My Life Now

Where do you live now?

Who do you live with?

Where do you go to school?

What grade are you in?

What is your favorite subject?

Which class is difficult for you?

In your free time, what do you do? (For example: work, play soccer, hang out with friends, etc.)

Are you happy to be here? Why or why not?

I am / am not happy to be in this country because...

interpersonal engagement then put Jeff Zwiers and Sara Hamerla's K-3 Guide to Academic Conversations at the top of your reading list. Whether your students love to talk or not, all must be equipped with key conversation skills such as active listening, taking turns, posing, clarifying, supporting with examples, and arguing ideas. This ready resource comes packed with every imaginable tool you could need to make academic conversations part of your everyday teaching: Sample lesson plans and anchor charts, Guidelines for creating effective prompts, Applications across content areas with corresponding assessments, Rubrics and protocols for listening to student speech, Transcripts of conversations and questions for reflection, Companion website with video and downloadable resources. Tens of thousands of students in the upper grades have reaped the benefits of academic conversations: high quality face-to-face interactions, increased motivation, stronger collaborative argumentation skills, and better understanding and retention of content. The K-3 Guide to Academic Conversations is that resource for providing your primary students with the same powerful learning opportunities. Crafting Comparison Papers Marcia S. Freeman, 2013. Since comparison papers require students to describe both similarities and differences, they are often used as assessment tools in just about every subject. For this reason alone, developing writers should be taught how to craft effective comparison papers. But teaching your students how to compose comparison papers also has a larger impact on their education: it prepares them to think more analytically, perform better in complex testing situations, and compare texts. In Crafting Comparison Papers, Marcia S. Freeman fully explains the four instructional steps that develop comparison skills: understanding the concept of attributes, organizing attributes for comparison, building clear coherent comparative paragraphs, and assembling effective comparison papers. She includes lessons with specific Target Skills™ to support your students' progress, and she suggests timelines that will help you plan your curriculum. Throughout Freeman's comprehensive approach and clear instructions, this book is a unique and valuable resource for any teacher of developing writers.

Improving Standards-Based Learning Judy F. Carr, Doug Harris, 2009-05-21. This comprehensive resource provides ready-to-use tools to lead educators through the design, implementation, and evaluation of a high-quality standards-based curriculum that significantly and positively impacts student learning. Nonfiction Writing Power Adrienne Gear, 2014-02-17. Writing nonfiction is a key skill that students will need throughout their school lives and beyond. This remarkable book is designed to help teachers develop a writing program that will enable their students to harness all of their Nonfiction Writing Powers: to Describe, to Instruct, to Compare, to Persuade, to Explain, and to Report. It illustrates ways to encourage students to write because they have something to say and to recognize that writing well means considering intent and purpose and choosing the best form of expression. Ideal for teaching writing in the content areas, the book includes guidance on linking writing forms to Science, Social Studies, and other subject areas. Activities for a Differentiated Classroom: Level 3 Wendy Conklin, 2011-02-01. Easily implement grade-appropriate lessons suitable for Grade 3 classrooms. Based on current research, these easy-to-use lessons are based on a variety of strategies to differentiate your instruction.
