Global Warming (200 words)

Over time, the cumulative increase in the earth's average global temperature is known as global warming. It has been said that large-scale deforestation by humans is to blame for various reasons. Every year, we use a lot of fuel. It is becoming impossible to meet the fuel needs of the people as the human population has increased. Natural resources must be used carefully as they are limited. The ecosystem will become unbalanced if humans overuse mineral wealth like forests and waterways. Temperature increases alone are not the only sign of global warming. It also has other consequences.

Natural disasters, including storms, floods, and avalanches, are happening all over the planet. These all have a direct connection to global warming. To protect our environment we must rebuild our ecology to defend it against the negative effects of global warming. To make this globe a nicer place for the generations to come, who also appreciate this earth in the same way we do, we must all
