

How to Write an AP Psychology FRQ

Contact author at komeinai on Discord / Last Updated: 10/18/2023 (MDY)

Foreword

I would like to preface this guide by explaining why you should (or shouldn't) listen to this advice. I am a student who took the AP exam for AP Psychology in 2022, scoring a 5. From August 2022 to April 2023, I have been writing my own practice FRQs and providing them to students on the Mr. Sinn discord server. As of now, I've written about 14. Over this time, my FRQ construction and grading has changed multiple times to fix oversights and errors. There is no reason to believe that it has been perfected.

My conclusions about the best way to write an FRQ are heavily based on previous years' scoring rubrics and example responses that Collegeboard publicly provides on their website. As such, I strongly encourage you to read recent FRQs and grading rubrics as they are not only useful review materials but also will allow you to come to your own conclusions regarding this topic. The requirements and structure of the FRQ have changed significantly since its inception and will likely continue to change, so reviewing the FRQs in reverse chronological order is likely the best approach. The link to past FRQs is provided below:

TLDR: (Too Long, Didn't Read)

Here's the one paragraph summary of everything that's about to be said:
Apply the term in the way specified by the prompt in one or two sentences with relatively accurate grammar. Don't bother defining the term, don't really need to underline/box/circle anything, just make sure it's obvious what point you're answering and somehow make it clear where one point ends and another begins. Don't pull from details outside the prompt unless there aren't details to pull from.
