In spite of the fact that crime is an emotive topic, the question of emotion has been largely overlooked in criminological research, which has tended instead to examine criminal conduct in terms of structural background variables or rational decision making. Building on research into emotions within sociology, this book seeks to show how criminologists can in fact take emotions seriously and why criminology needs to begin considering emotions as a central element of its theoretical, conceptual, and methodological apparatus. Thematically organised and presenting both empirical and theoretical studies, Emotions and Crime pays attention to the different emotional dimensions of crime, victimhood, the criminal justice system, the practice of criminological research, and the discipline of criminology. Bringing together the work of an international team of authors and discussing research into violence, punishment, gender, imprisonment, and mass atrocity, this volume shows how crime and emotions are inextricably connected and illustrates both the hidden and pervasive role of emotions in criminological work.

Mastering Self-Protection Against the Female Victim Complex Conrad Riker, 101-01-01. Are you tired of being manipulated by women with a victim mentality? Struggling to navigate your relationships in today's hostile environment? Look no further. In Mastering Self-Protection Against the Female Victim Complex, author Conrad Riker provides practical guidance for redpilled men dealing with women who embrace victimhood and love the benefits of leveraging empathy.
