Selling Hope and College Alex Posecznick,2017-04-25 It has long been assumed that college admission should be a simple matter of sorting students according to merit with the best heading off to the Ivy League and highly ranked liberal arts colleges and the rest falling naturally into their rightful places Admission to selective institutions where extremely fine distinctions are made is characterized by heated public debates about whether standardized exams high school transcripts essays recommendation letters or interviews best indicate which prospective students are worthy And then there is college for everyone else But what goes into less selective college admissions in an era when everyone feels compelled to go regardless of preparation or life goals Ravenwood College where Alex Posecznick spent a year doing ethnographic research was a small private nonprofit institution dedicated to social justice and serving traditionally underprepared students from underrepresented minority groups To survive in the higher education marketplace the college had to operate like a business and negotiate complex categories of merit while painting a hopeful picture of the future for its applicants Selling Hope and College is a snapshot of a particular type of institution as it goes about the business of producing itself and justifying its place in the market Admissions staff members were burdened by low enrollments and worked tirelessly to fill empty seats even as they held on to the institution's special spirit Posecznick documents what it takes to keep a mediocre institution open and running and the struggles tensions and battles that members of the community tangle with daily as they carefully walk the line between empowering marginalized students and exploiting them

Applicative Justice Naomi Zack, 2016-03-04 Naomi Zack pioneers a new theory of justice starting from a correction of current injustices While the present justice paradigm in political philosophy and related fields begins from John Rawls's 1970 Theory of Justice Zack insists that what people in reality care about is not justice as an ideal but injustice as a correctable ill For a way to describe real injustice and the society in which it occurs Zack resurrects Arthur Bentley's key insight that government and law or political life is a constant process of contending interest groups throughout society Bentley's main idea allows for a resolution of the contradiction between formal legal equality for U.S. minorities and post civil rights practical inequality Just law and unjust practice co-exist as a fact of political life The correction of injustice in reality requires applicative justice in a comparison between those who are treated unjustly with those who are treated justly and the design of effective measures to equalize such treatment Zack's theory of applicative justice offers a revolutionary reorientation of society's pursuit of justice seeking to undo injustice in a practical and fully achievable way Charter School Report Card Shawgi Tell, 2016-04-01 What is a charter school Where do they come from Who promotes them and why What are they supposed to do Are they the silver bullet to the ills plaguing the American public education system This book provides a comprehensive and accessible overview and analysis of charter schools and their many dimensions It shows that charter schools as a whole lower the quality of education through the privatization and marketization of education The final chapter provides readers with a way toward rethinking and remaking education in a way that is consistent with modern requirements Society and its members need a fully funded high quality public education system open to all and controlled by a public
