Acquiring Culture (Psychology Revivals) Gustav Jahoda, Ioan Lewis, 2015-03-27 Until the 70s and 80s anthropologists studying different cultures had mainly confined themselves to the behaviour and idea systems of adults Psychologists on the other hand working mainly in Europe and America had studied child development in their own settings and simply assumed the universality of their findings Thus both disciplines had largely ignored a crucial problem area the way in which children from birth onwards learn to become competent members of their culture This process which has been called the quintessential human adaptation constitutes the theme of this volume originally published in 1988 It derives from a workshop held at the London School of Economics which brought together fieldworkers who in their studies had paid more than usual attention to children in their cultures Their experience and foci of interest were varied but this very diversity serves to illuminate different facets of the acquisition of culture by children ranging in age from pre verbal infants to adolescents Evolutionarily primed for culture learning children are responsive to a rich web of influences from subtle and indirect as in their music and dance to direct teaching in the family guided by culture specific ideas about child psychology Some of the salient things they learn relate to gender status and power critical for the functioning of all societies The introductory essay provides the necessary historical background of the development of child study in both anthropology and psychology and outlined how future research in the ethnography of childhood should proceed The book concludes with an annotated bibliography providing a guide to the literature from 1970 onwards

Greenfield, Rodney R. Cocking, 2014-02-25 This book constitutes the first time in the field of developmental psychology that cross cultural roots of minority child development have been studied in their ancestral societies in a systematic way and by an international group of researchers Most child development and child psychology texts take cultural diversity in development into account only as an addendum or as a special case it is not integrated into a comprehensive theory or model of development The purpose of this text is to redress this situation by enlisting insiders and outsiders perspectives on socialization and development in a diverse sampling of the world s cultures including developing regions that often lack the means to speak for themselves in the arena of international social science The unique feature of this text is the paradigm For the minority groups represented the questions focused on how development was behaviorally expressed within the culture of origin and in new societal contexts Thus developmental issues such as language and mother child interactions for African American children are considered in the United States as well as in the African culture of origin and in France as a country of immigration This paradigm is considered for African and Asian cultures and the Americas including Hispanics from Mexico as well as Native Americans Specific questions posed consider the extent to which the development and socialization of minority children can be seen as continuous with their ancestral cultures the cultural and political conditions in the United States Canada and France have modified developmental and socialization processes yielding discontinuities with ancestral cultures the ancestral cultures have changed yielding cross generational discontinuities in the development and socialization of immigrants from the very same countries the role of interdependence and independence in developmental scripts can account for historical continuities and discontinuities in development and socialization both across and within cultures These questions not only provide the unifying theme of this unique book but also a model for conceptualizing multi culturalism within a unified framework for developmental psychology Religion Index One ,1995 Musical Courier and Review of Recorded Music ,1920 Childhood and Adolescence Uwe Peter Gielen,Jaipaul L.
