Human Body Organs

Kidneys

Kidneys are the body's natural filters. They regulate the balance of fluids and waste in the body. They are located in the back of the body, one on each side of the spine. They filter out waste from the blood and send it out of the body. They also help to regulate blood pressure and produce hormones.

Stomach

Stomach is a muscular organ that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the upper abdomen. It is responsible for breaking down food into smaller pieces that can be absorbed by the body. It also produces stomach acid to help with digestion.

Small Intestine

Small intestine is a long, coiled tube that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the lower abdomen. It is responsible for absorbing nutrients from the food that has been digested in the stomach. It also produces enzymes to help with digestion.

Large Intestine

Large intestine is a long, coiled tube that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the lower abdomen. It is responsible for absorbing water and electrolytes from the food that has been digested in the small intestine. It also produces mucus to help with digestion.

Heart

Hearth is a muscular organ that is part of the circulatory system. It is located in the center of the chest. It is responsible for pumping blood throughout the body. It has four chambers: two atria and two ventricles. The right side of the heart pumps blood to the lungs, and the left side pumps blood to the rest of the body.

Liver

Liver is a large, reddish-brown organ that is part of the digestive system. It is located in the upper right abdomen. It is responsible for producing bile, which is used to digest food. It also stores glycogen and produces proteins.

Lungs

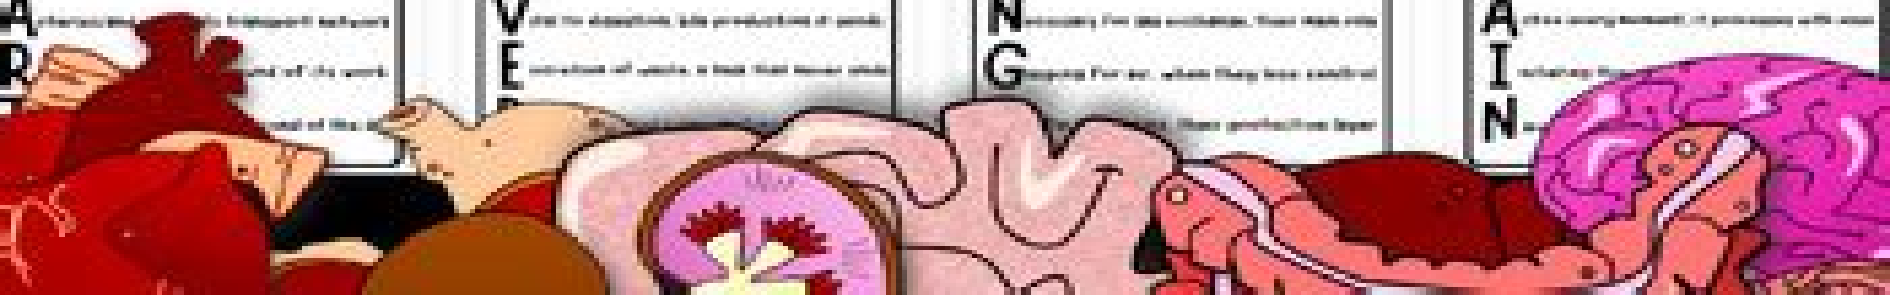

Lungs are two large, spongy organs that are part of the respiratory system. They are located in the chest cavity. They are responsible for taking in oxygen from the air and expelling carbon dioxide. They are covered by a thin layer of tissue called the pleura.

Brain

Brain is a soft, pinkish-grey organ that is part of the nervous system. It is located in the head. It is responsible for controlling all the functions of the body. It is made up of billions of neurons that communicate with each other.
