Between Dream Houses and "God's Own Junkyard": Architecture and the Built Environment in American Suburban Fiction Stefanie Strebel, 2021-06-28 The American suburb is a space dominated by architectural mass production sprawl as well as a monotonous aesthetic eclecticism, and many critics argue that it has developed from a postwar utopia into a disorienting environment with which it is difficult to identify. The typical suburb has come to display characteristics of an atopia that is a space without borders or even a non-place, a generic space of transience. Dealing with the representation of architecture and the built environment in suburban literature and film from the 1920s until present, this study demonstrates that in its fictional representations too suburbia has largely turned into a place of non-architecture. A lack of architectural ethos and an abundance of junkspace define suburban narratives, causing an increasing sense of disorientation and entropy in fictional characters. Moody's Transportation Manual, 1997 Motor Auto Repair Manual, 2010 Oakland County Telephone Directories, 2007 Report, 2010 Kinesiology of the Musculoskeletal System - E-Book Donald A.
