or trade agreement between the home state and the host state Some suggest such protection would be unnecessary as the investor committed a crime in the host state while others attempt to establish an equilibrium between the investor and the host state Others claim to protect investment invoking the sanctity of promises made The book starts with a deep dive into economic and legal issues in corruption and investment arbitration and then explores the situation and issues in major countries in the region in detail It is a useful reference point for lawyers economists investors and government officials who are seeking comprehensive and up to date information on anti bribery rules in Asian investment treaties It is of particular interest to students and researchers in economics finance and law who are undertaking new research relating to the multifaceted impacts of corruption
