Handbook of Food Engineering Dennis R. Heldman, Daryl B. Lund, Cristina Sabliov, 2018-12-19 As the complexity of the food supply system increases the focus on processes used to convert raw food materials and ingredients into consumer food products becomes more important The Handbook of Food Engineering Third Edition continues to provide students and food engineering professionals with the latest information needed to improve the efficiency of the food supply system As with the previous editions this book contains the latest information on the thermophysical properties of foods and kinetic constants needed to estimate changes in key components of foods during manufacturing and distribution Illustrations are used to demonstrate the applications of the information to process design Researchers should be able to use the information to pursue new directions in process development and design and to identify future directions for research on the physical properties of foods and kinetics of changes in the food throughout the supply system Features Covers basic concepts of transport and storage of liquids and solids heating and cooling of foods and food ingredients New chapter covers nanoscale science in food systems Includes chapters on mass transfer in foods and membrane processes for liquid concentration and other applications Discusses specific unit operations on freezing concentration dehydration thermal processing and extrusion The first four chapters of the Third Edition focus primarily on the properties of foods and food ingredients with a new chapter on nanoscale applications in foods Each of the eleven chapters that follow has a focus on one of the more traditional unit operations used throughout the food supply system Major revisions and or updates have been incorporated into chapters on heating and cooling processes membrane processes extrusion processes and cleaning operations

Innovative Food Processing Technologies ,2020-08-18 Food process engineering a branch of both food science and chemical engineering has evolved over the years since its inception and still is a rapidly changing discipline While traditionally the main objective of food process engineering was preservation and stabilization the focus today has shifted to enhance health aspects flavour and taste nutrition sustainable production food security and also to ensure more diversity for the increasing demand of consumers The food industry is becoming increasingly competitive and dynamic and strives to develop high quality freshly prepared food products To achieve this objective food manufacturers are today presented with a growing array of new technologies that have the potential to improve or replace conventional processing technologies to deliver higher quality and better consumer targeted food products which meet many if not all of the demands of the modern consumer These new or innovative technologies are in various stages of development including some still at the R D stage and others that have been commercialised as alternatives to conventional processing technologies Food process engineering comprises a series of unit operations traditionally applied in the food industry One major component of these operations relates to the application of heat directly or indirectly to provide foods free from pathogenic microorganisms but also to enhance or intensify other processes such as extraction separation or modification of components The last three decades have also witnessed the advent and adaptation of several operations processes and techniques aimed at producing high quality foods with minimum alteration of sensory and nutritive properties Some of these innovative technologies have significantly reduced the thermal component in food processing offering alternative nonthermal methods Food Processing Technologies A Comprehensive Review Three Volume Set covers the latest advances in innovative and nonthermal processing such as high pressure pulsed electric fields radiofrequency high intensity pulsed light ultrasound irradiation and new hurdle technology Each section will have an introductory article covering the basic principles and applications of each technology and in depth articles covering the currently available equipment and or the current state of development food quality and safety application to various sectors food laws and regulations consumer acceptance advancements and future scope It will also contain case studies and examples to illustrate state of the art applications Each section will serve as an excellent reference to food industry professionals involved in the processing of a wide range of food categories e g meat seafood beverage dairy eggs fruits and vegetable products spices herbs among others The Oxford Handbook of Management in Emerging Markets Robert E.
