African Attitude Novel:

An Introduction to the African Prose Narrative Lokangaka Losambe, 2004 This collection of essays introduces students of African literature to the heritage of the African prose narrative starting from its oral base and covering its linguistic and cultural diversity The book brings together essays on both the classics and the relatively new works in all subgenres of the African prose narrative including the traditional epic the novel the short story and the autobiography The chapters are arranged according to the respective thematic paradigms under which the discussed works fall

African Settings in Contemporary American Novels Dave Kuhne, 1999-05-30 Africa has long captured the Western imagination as a land shrouded in danger and mystery British and American novels written before World War II established popular conventions and stereotypes about Africa that have been increasingly challenged by contemporary American novels set in Africa Kuhne's book overviews the ways in which Africa has been employed as a powerful setting for American novels written since World War II Kuhne argues that contemporary American novels with African settings are largely didactic that these novels convey specific lessons about Africa and Africans and that they compare African and American cultures in order to evaluate and critique the two worlds The book begins by summarizing the conventions and themes Westerners have traditionally associated with Africa and by detailing how British and American authors from Aphra Behn to Ernest Hemingway depicted Africa before World War II It then looks at contemporary American novels set in invented African nations novels that typically suggest that the problems that trouble actual African nations are the result of colonialism A separate chapter then examines the African novels of African Americans which generally aim to correct the historical record refute stereotypes and detail the horrors of the slave trade The volume also looks at genre fiction set in Africa while a final chapter discusses postcolonial novels with African settings

The Post-colonial Studies Reader Bill Ashcroft, Gareth Griffiths, Helen Tiffin, 2006 Boasting new extracts from major works in the field as well as an impressive list of contributors this second edition of a bestselling Reader is an invaluable introduction to the most seminal texts in post colonial theory and criticism

Cultural identity in the East African novel Regina Hartmann, 2014-04-11 Inhaltsangabe Introduction As the Black African writers have taught us we must dance our word for in human speech as in dance lies an offering to speak and to write is also to offer oneself to the other it is to be reborn together This quotation by M Rombaut locates African literature close to the performing arts According to his statement African literature seems to transcend the conventional European conception of writing which is conceiving literature as something planned and permanent The idea of a literary performance in African writing places the author much closer to the story teller who is dependent on his audience and trying to keep in touch with them By processing their feelings in his performance he gives expression to a common consciousness In contrast to the Western author who often wants to stand apart from his society African authors tend to aim their participation in the formation of a shared identity This paper tries to find out how authors from the framework of East Africa conceive of cultural identity Basically I will proceed in two steps part A is dedicated to the development of a pattern within which the complex issue of identity can be adequately discussed in an East African context In Part B I will then apply this discussion scheme to three novels which as I will explain are representative for East African writing in far as this term is justified Part A starts off from some basic observations about identity on the foundation of which I want to deduce the structure of my analysis I will argue that identity is based on ones observation of the environment and on the influence of outsiders All this is to some extent true for two concepts individual and cultural identity The latter develops when a group of individuals feels or is ascribed a common bond apt to correspond to several individual self concepts These individuals may then share a feeling of home which can act as a physical but also mental commitment Departing from these ideas I will show that four issues might be interesting in dealing with cultural identity which can be expressed by some central questions 1 Identity imposed and adopted In how far can others influence our identity 2 Identity rediscovered and reinvented To what extent does our history work on identity 3 Identity displaced How does our feeling of physical or mental bond to a physical or mental space I will call home work on identity 4 Identity integrated How
