1. All is fair in love and war (Jan van tonder):
 - the story is about Edwill, Helena and Waldemar, and they are in a love triangle.
 - Edwill and Lita have a plan to get Waldemar and Helena away from each other. En die plan kom by Edwill op toe die Afrikaanse onderwyser hulle die storie van Helena van Troje vertel.
 - "In die klas het die Afrikaanse onderwyser hulle eendag die storie van Helena van Troje vertel en van die houtperd waarin soldate weggesteek is sodat hulle die stad onopgemerk kon binnegaan. En daar en dan het Edwill 'n plan gekry: hy sou met Waldemar vriende maak."

Karakters:

Sherris, Joy Kreeft Peyton, 2025-09-05 The voices in this book raise questions about the relationalities and entanglements of applied linguists in a troubled world They are the personal stories that are sometimes hidden behind and within more conventional teaching research and scholarship however iconoclastic and unconventional the endeavors themselves Injustice runs through and across the chapters connecting one with another but also highlighting differences The stories in this book describe or picture anxieties fears veils exclusion erasures microaggressions racism and patriarchy together with the painful double binds and pitfalls experienced in applied linguistic fieldwork and teaching By sharing their stories the authors attempt to embody the changes called into being through their applied linguistics teaching and fieldwork Critical Literacies in

Action , 2008-01-01 Critical Literacies in Action Social Perspectives and Teaching Practices asks how educators can become more experienced in order to truly support literacy particularly for children of poverty or for those who have been labeled at risk This is especially important in current times since a literate individual is one who is more successfully able to situate him or herself within a continuum of lifelong learning in order to fulfill personal goals and to participate fully within the wider societal context Although the word literacy has been with us for a very long time the very meaning of the term itself has become increasingly complex due to a multiplicity of factors At least in part this complexity is a function of expanding and interconnecting notions of what it is that constitutes modern literacy as well as the increasingly technological nature of the world within which individuals live and learn As such a new horizon in literacy research has appeared promising to renegotiate traditional definitions of the term literate and what it means to be critically literate in this increasingly complex world. Definitions of literacy have also evolved along with the evolution of the computer. Currently the term literacy describes a commitment to and participation in a multiplicity of meaning making systems many of which exhibit ever greater degrees of interdependence with one another. The term Critical Literacy has come into use relatively recently and is generally regarded as a sub category of Critical Pedagogy. Critical because it promotes an agenda for positive social change. Unisa English Studies University of South Africa. Department of English, 1994

Switching Languages Steven G. Kellman, 2003-01-01

Though it is difficult enough to write well in one's native tongue, an extraordinary group of authors has written enduring poetry and prose in a second, third or even fourth language. Switching Languages is the first anthology in which translingual authors from throughout the world examine their experiences writing in more than one language or in a language other than their primary one. Driven by factors as varied as migration, imperialism, a quest for verisimilitude and a desire to assert artistic autonomy, translingualism has a long and brilliant history. In Switching Languages, Steven G. Kellman brings together several notable authors from the past one hundred years who discuss their personal translingual experiences and their take on a general phenomenon that has not received the attention it deserves. Contributors to the book include Chinua Achebe, Julia Alvarez, Mary Antin, Elias Canetti, Rosario Ferré, Ha Jin, Salman Rushdie, Leopold S. Senghor and Ilan Stavans. They offer vivid testimony to the challenges and achievements of literary translingualism.

Struggles for Multilingualism and Linguistic Citizenship Quentin Williams, Ana Deumert, Tommaso M. Milani, 2022-07-08

This book offers a fresh perspective on the social life of multilingualism through the lens of the important notion of linguistic citizenship. All of the chapters are underpinned by a theoretical and methodological engagement with linguistic citizenship as a useful heuristic through which to understand sociolinguistic processes in late modernity, focusing in particular on linguistic agency and voices on the margins of our societies. The authors take stock of conservative, liberal, progressive and radical social transformations in democracies in the north and south and consider the implications for multilingualism as a resource, as a way of life and as a feature of identity politics. Each chapter builds on earlier research on linguistic citizenship by illuminating how multilingualism in both theory and practice should be or could be thought of as inclusive when we recognize what multilingual speakers do with language for voice and agency.

Emerging Traditions Vicki Briault Manus, 2012-07-10

The monograph explores the linguistic impact of the colonial and postcolonial situations in South Africa on language policy, on literary production and especially on the stylistics of fiction by indigenous South Africans writing in English. A secondary concern is to investigate the present place of English in the multilingual spectrum of South African languages and to see how this worldly English relates to Global English in the South African context. The introduction presents a socio-linguistic overview of South Africa from pre-historic times until the present, including language planning policies during and after the colonial era and a cursory review of how the difficulties encountered in implementing the Language Plan provided for by the new South African constitution impinge on the development of black South African English Six chapters track the course of English in South Africa since the arrival of the British in 1795 considered from the point of view of the indigenous African population The study focuses on ways in which indigenous authors indigenize their writing innovating and subverting stylistic conventions including those of African orature in order to bend language and genre towards their own culture and objectives Each chapter corresponds to a briefly outlined historical period that is largely reflected in linguistic and literary developments A small number of significant works for each period are discussed one of which is selected for a case study at the end of each chapter where it is subjected to detailed stylistic analysis and appraised for the degree of indigenization or other linguistic or socio historic influences on style The methodology adopted is a linguistic approach to stylistics focusing on indigenization of English inspired by the work of Chantal Zabus in her book The African Palimpsest Indigenization of Language in the West African Europhone Novel 2007 1991 The conclusion reappraises the original hypothesis that the specific characteristi
