Jones,2018-01-18 First published in 1958 Free Associations is the story of the early life of Ernest Jones It was prepared for publication by his son Mervyn who contributed an epilogue covering the period from 1918 when this book ends through Jones s death in 1944 This new edition includes a reflective introduction by Mervyn Jones in which he writes about Ernest Jones as I could not write in 1958 One of the pioneers in psychoanalysis Ernest Jones was active in advancing the status as well as the development of the field In the wider forum of public opinion he made himself an advocate of the new science the Huxley he liked to say to Freud s Darwin Huxley had ranked below Darwin in creative originality and had filled the role of the faithful and indispensably useful follower and Mervyn Jones believes both Freud and Jones were pleased by the comparison In addition to his important public and organizational roles as president of the British and International Psychoanalytic Associations Jones made significant contributions to psychoanalytic theory When the Nazis invaded Vienna he saved much of the assets and archives of psychoanalysis at great personal risk and made the arrangements for Freud to come to London In his introduction Mervyn Jones presents a sometimes surprising portrait of a thoroughly conventional man in what was then an unconventional profession He describes tensions and conflicts among the early Freudians and situates Freudianism with other theories that laid claim to scientific truth in the late nineteenth century Free Associations presents an evocative picture of Wales and London at the turn of the century and describes the developing profession of psychoanalysis It is a dramatic story of success and failure and of a young man and how he responded to the new strange ideas of Freud This book fills in our understanding of the history of psychoanalysis and its founders Forbidden Bread Erica Johnson Debeljak, 2009-04-07 consider cinema the artform with the greatest political force The images it produces can bolster leaders or contribute to their undoing Soviet filmmakers often had to face great obstacles as they struggled to make art in an authoritarian society that put them not only under ideological pressure but also imposed rigid economic constraints on the industry But while the Brezhnev era of Soviet filmmaking is often depicted as a period of great repression Soviet Art House reveals that the films made at the prestigious Lenfilm studio in this period were far more imaginative than is usually suspected In this pioneering study of a Soviet film studio author Catriona Kelly delves into previously unpublished archival documents and interviews memoirs and the films themselves to illuminate the ideological economic and aesthetic dimensions of filmmaking in the Brezhnev era She argues that especially the young filmmakers who joined the studio after its restructuring in 1961 revitalized its output and helped establish Leningrad as a leading center of oppositional art This unique insight into Soviet film production shows not only the inner workings of Soviet institutions before the system collapsed but also traces how filmmakers tirelessly dodged and negotiated contradictory demands to create sophisticated and highly original movies Harry Thomas' Memory Lane
