Family Worlds Gerald Handel, 2017-07-05

How does a family function? How does a family make a distinctive life of its own while living according to the values of society? In what ways is a family a unit when all its members have personalities of their own? How can we understand diversity among families? Robert D. Hess and Gerald Handel sensitively explore the dynamics of family life in five narrative case studies: The Clarks, the Lansons, the Littletons, the Newbolds, and the Steeles. They are all typical families with representative social, cultural, and psychological problems. By simultaneously studying each family as a small group and as a set of individual personalities, the authors have captured the interplay between personality and family as each group works out its own special way of coping with its problems. Further, they have formulated several principles of family functioning that help focus comparison. Family Worlds was the first and is still one of the few studies to interview each member of the family, giving equal weight to children as well as to adults, so each family member's perspective is factored into Hess and Handel's family portraits. A new introduction to the Transaction edition illuminates just how significant this ground-breaking study still is today and highlights the new implications it has for today's families as well as emerging approaches.

The Changing Rhythms of American Family Life Suzanne M. Bianchi, John P. Robinson, Melissa A. Milke, 2006-07-13

Over the last forty years, the number of American households with a stay-at-home parent has dwindled as women have increasingly joined the paid workforce, and more women raise children alone. Many policy makers feared these changes would come at the expense of time mothers spend with their children. In Changing Rhythms of American Family Life, sociologists Suzanne M. Bianchi, John P. Robinson, and Melissa Milkie analyze the way families spend their time and uncover surprising new findings about how Americans are balancing the demands of work and family. Using time diary data from surveys of American parents over the last four decades, Changing Rhythms of American Family Life finds that despite increased workloads outside of the home, mothers today spend at least as much time interacting with their children as mothers did decades ago, and perhaps even more. Unexpectedly, the authors find that mothers' time at work has not resulted in an overall decline in sleep or leisure time. Rather, mothers have made time for both work and family by sacrificing time spent doing housework and by increased multitasking. Changing Rhythms of American Family Life finds that the total workload in and out of the home for employed parents is high for both sexes, with employed mothers averaging five hours more per week than employed fathers and almost nineteen hours more per week than homemaker mothers. Comparing average workloads of fathers with all mothers, both those in the paid workforce and homemakers, the authors find that there is gender equality in total workloads as there has been since 1965. Overall, it appears that Americans have adapted to changing circumstances to ensure that they preserve their family time and provide adequately for their children Changing Rhythms of American Family Life explodes many of the popular misconceptions about how Americans balance work and family Though the iconic image of the American mother has changed from a docile homemaker to a frenzied sleepless working mom this important new volume demonstrates that the time mothers spend with their families has remained steady throughout the decades Choices and Constraints in Family Life Maureen Baker,2007 Using an interdisciplinary approach that draws on the latest research in sociology anthropology psychology and cultural studies this text expertly traces how families have changed over time and reveals how both personal preferences and social circumstances influence family relationships and society s shared perception of the family Publisher s description Families Vanessa May,2023-11-08 In this accessible and engagingly written book Vanessa May invites readers into the rich world of thought research and study of the highly diverse phenomenon of families and family life The book explores what is and has been understood by family in different sociocultural contexts and how family life intersects with social spheres such as the state the labour market and the economy Alongside broad social developments such as post colonialism and austerity and their connections with changing family patterns the book engages interdisciplinary work on time embodiment and materiality in order to offer a multidimensional perspective on the day to day lives of families Drawing from research in the Global North and the Global South the text carefully considers how people approach the study of families and thus offers insight into the shape of mainstream family studies today The book offers a timely intervention into current debates within family studies and suggests avenues of investigation that deserve further attention and will be an invaluable resource to students and scholars alike Home Economics Series ,1951 Intellectual Disabilities: Health and Social Care Across the Lifespan Fintan Sheerin,Carmel Doyle,2023-06-19 This textbook provides nurses allied health and social care professionals with the background knowledge necessary to support individuals with intellectual disabilities and their families It is a unique and viable resource which is particularly timely as recent decades have seen a significant change in the demographics and associated care and support needs of this population The textbook is laid into four sections to provide a logical structure for the content with chapters developing key topic areas relevant to the field The introductory section sets the overall context for the book and considers the importance of developing an understanding of intellectual disability as a core concept identifying philosophies and models of service that underpin health and social care across the lifespan Communication as a basis for caring and the overall concept of person centred caring in a multidisciplinary context is considered The second section explores key concepts from birth to adulthood exploring the nature of intellectual disability the child with intellectual disability and other related neurodevelopmental conditions The third section explores adulthood to older age and considers specific health care needs understanding behaviour and other fundamental concepts including mental health ageing and palliative care The fourth and final section explores the integration of health and social care addressing such issues as
